Gudmundur Alfredsson, Rolf Ring

World Bank Inspection Panel:

The World Bank Inspection Panel Ibrahim F. I. Shihata, 1994 In 1993 the World Bank created an Inspection Panel to investigate complaints about its own operations This initiative the first of its kind for an international organization is the subject of this book As general counsel of the World Bank and one of the main architects of the initiative the author is in a unique position to analyze the implications of this step for the World Bank for other international organizations and for international law This is the first book on such a topic and as such it is likely to remain the most authoritative source of information on the subject for years to come The World Bank's Inspection Panel Yvonne Wong, 2014 This chapter examines the general functioning of the World Bank Inspection Panel during its first two decades of operation 1994 2014 to assess whether it really is a vehicle through which individuals can hold the World Bank accountable In making this assessment the chapter considers a the history of the panel b the novelty of the panel as a mechanism for implementing the accountability of an international organization c the legal framework of the panel d the accessibility of the panel to the people it seeks to help e the transparency independence and public accountability of the panel and f the direct and indirect outcomes of the panel mechanism The chapter suggests that while not providing affected persons a legal avenue for redress the Inspection Panel if used strategically as part of larger advocacy strategies particularly by increasing media coverage on problematic projects can nevertheless serve as a useful tool in helping redress wrongs committed as a result of the Bank's failure to comply with its own policies More generally the panel can also push for a cultural change toward greater consideration of the unintended consequences of development projects The World Bank Inspection Panel and Its Leading Role as an Independent Accountability Mechanism for Project-affected People and Communities Andrea Kämpf, 2018

The Inspection Panel of the World Bank Gudmundur Alfredsson, Rolf Ring, 2022-07-11 With the adoption of extensive human rights standards and their wide acceptance by States and the international community the time has come to emphasise the implementation of these standards at both national and international levels International financial institutions and development agencies have a special role to play in this respect considering the influence and the resources at their disposal Increasingly they are acknowledging this duty not only as a service to human rights but more so in recognition of the contribution which human rights and democracy and so by extension good governance and accountability make to political stability and improved economies This volume is the result of a Workshop on the Inspection Panel which was organised in Lund by the Raoul Wallenberg Institute of Human Rights and Humanitarian Law and co sponsored by the World Bank Its purpose is to look for common ground in areas of mutual interest and to offer a substantive collection of ideas which can prove useful for the future work of the Inspection Panel and similar institutions Such undertakings must include human rights education and training for the officialdom of national governments and international organisations as well as for the individuals and groups who stand to benefit from the implementation of the international standards and monitoring exercises

Inspection Panel,World Bank,1994 The World Bank's Inspection Panel Enrique R. Carrasco,Alison K. Guernsey,2008 In September 1993 the World Bank created the Inspection Panel At the time it was hailed as an unprecedented effort to increase the Bank s accountability Prior to the establishment of the Panel the Bank had engaged in a number of projects that devastated local populations and caused significant environmental damage After unrelenting pressure from environmental and human rights non governmental organizations NGOs the World Bank established the Inspection Panel with hopes of bringing transparency to the Bank s project lending Generally the Panel is charged with investigating complaints filed by parties in borrower countries who believe that the Bank is violating its policies or procedures in the design preparation or implementation of a Bank funded project Despite its novelty when it was established in 1993 there are many critiques of the Panel In general critics question whether the Panel truly increases the accountability of the World Bank on the whole Critics often point out that it has a limited substantive mandate and no ability to grant relief Furthermore the mechanism fails to give affected people a true voice in the outcome of an investigation After the Panel receives the claim the Bank rarely considers the affected communities desires for resolution In essence the Panel is compliance oriented and problem solving is not a principal focus This paper proposes an alternative to the current Inspection Panel process that would offer real and meaningful accountability Our proposal envisions a two stage process that first would require claimant communities to file a Request for Claim Resolution with a newly created Office of Claims Resolution OCR at the World Bank The Director of the OCR would appoint an independent Intermediator who would attempt to solve the problem created by the Bank s alleged noncompliance with its own policies and procedures We expect that most claims would be resolved at the administrative level If however the Intermediator failed to resolve the claim or if the Bank agreed to corrective measures but failed to abide by them claimant communities would have the option to institute arbitration proceedings against the Bank The proceedings would be conducted based on a modified version of the Optional Rules for Arbitration between International Organizations and Private Parties produced by the Permanent Court of Arbitration The tribunal s decision would be public final and binding upon the parties Its award could set forth corrective measures that the Bank would be required to take to bring it into compliance with its policies and procedures The tribunal could also award damages to the claimant community
