World Development Report 1986:

World Development Report 1986, 1986 This is the ninth in an annual series assessing development issues The world economy is entering its fourth year of growth since the recession of 1982 Yet the recovery is hesitant with many developing countries facing serious problems of adjustment The recent decline in oil prices interest rates and inflation will provide a stimulus to developed and developing countries alike But many debtor countries particularly oil exporters will find it hard to maintain growth in the near term The effects of the recovery have been much weaker for many low income Sub Saharan countries Part I of the report explores the policies required to restore growth in the developing world It stresses the importance of developed countries maintaining the policies that have both reduced inflation and moderated distortions in their markets Of concern however is the increase in international trade restrictions if countries are to attain sustainable growth the reform of domestic institutions must be accompanied by an effort towards international freer trade Part 2 suggests that the gradual liberalization of trade should be a high priority for international action in agriculture An examination of the policy options in developing countries suggests that economic stability and growth could be greatly enhanced by focusing on improved pricing and trade policies

The Politics of Global Competitiveness Paul Cammack, 2022 Marx predicted in Capital 1867 that as capitalism became global patterns of work would be transformed and workers would need to develop versatility flexibility and mobility This general law of social production as he called it is now in evidence all around us in global value chains zero hours contracts and contract work organised through digital platforms It results from competition between capitalists scientific and technological revolutions in production and incessant advances in the division of labour as production processes are broken down into ever smaller steps This book documents the leading roles of the Paris based Organisation for Economic Cooperation and Development and the Washington based World Bank as advocates of these developments They do not as generally supposed simply represent the interests of the advanced economies or the West and their transnational corporations They promote a single global model of capitalist development without limits and on a genuinely global scale It calls upon all states to adjust continually to the structural and social demands of competitiveness which they see as essential to the global hegemony of capital over labour The OECD and the World Bank propose policies that give girls and women equal access to education and paid work reform welfare to make work pay introduce flexible labour contracts that make hiring and firing easier focus education on skills that boost employability and draw workers in the developing world from the informal sector into the formal sector where they can be more productive This is the politics of global competitiveness

World Development Report, 1991 This report synthesizes and interprets the lessons of more than forty years of development experience Together with last year's report on poverty and next year's on the environment it seeks to provide a comprehensive overview of the development agenda The 1990s began with dramatic changes as many countries in Eastern Europe and elsewhere initiated ambitious reforms of their economic and political systems Against the backdrop of these transitions this report links the historical debates that counseled policymakers in their past decisions the lessons of experience and the evolving thought on how best to proceed One of the most valuable lessons relates to the interaction between the state and the market in fostering development It describes a market friendly approach in which governments allow markets to function well and in which governments concentrate their interventions on areas in which markets prove inadequate The report looks at four main aspects of the relationship between governments and markets a investing in people b the climate for enterprises to flourish c the integration of countries with the global economy and d a stable macroeconomic foundation for sustained progress The report stresses that above all the future of developing countries is in their own hands Domestic policies and institutions hold the key to successful development

The China Miracle Justin Yifu Lin,Fang Cai,Zhou Li,2004-03-15 The tremendous success of China's economic reform in contrast with the vast difficulties encountered by the former Soviet Union and Eastern European countries in their transition has attracted worldwide attention Using a historical comparative and analytic approach grounded in mainstream economics the authors develop a consistent and rational framework of state owned enterprises and individual agents to analyze the internal logic of the traditional planning system They also explain why the Chinese economy grew slowly before the market oriented reform in 1979 but became one of the fastest growing economies afterwards and why the vigour chaos cycle became part of China's reform process The book also addresses to the questions that whether China can continue its trend of reform and development and become the largest economy in the world in the early 21st century and what the general implications of China's experience of development and reform are for other developing and transition economies The first edition has been well received and is the standard textbook or reference for students and researchers of China studies In this thoroughly revised edition the authors have updated the data and information in the book and include a new chapter on the impact of China's WTO accession on its economic reforms and causes of the current deflation
