Annotation co Total Quality Management in American School Zhang Yulei, 2003 The concept of Total Quality Management TQM was developed after World War II by an American Dr William Edwards Deming for improving the production quality of goods and services But the concept was not taken seriously by Americans until the Japanese who adopted it in 1950 to resurrect their postwar business and industry used it to dominate world markets This philosophy was implemented in the business world in America during the 1980s After observing the success of TQM in business the American educational system decided to apply TQM to the school setting in the early 1990s Mt Edgecumbe High School MEHS located in Sitka Alaska is the most outstanding school to implement the principles of TQM into learning This project focuses on how the principles of TQM were implemented in MEHS It is hoped that the results of this case study can provide some strategies to improve the quality of education at other schools worldwide Based on the study the researcher found that implementing the principles of TQM into this school was very complicated Surrounding the principles of TQM the leaders administrators in MEHS adopted some approaches or methods to implement TQM In addition to the leader's role the successful implementation of TQM required the involvement of all staff students and faculties of MEHS At the educational level in school level Mt Edgecumbe High School formed a distinguished model of TQM implementation One teacher pioneered the implementation of TQM in MEHS and led other teachers to ride on the way to higher quality under the strong support of the school leaders In classroom the level implementation of TQM principles was embodied in the teaching learning process The relationship between teacher and students was like co colleagues Many strategies such as Plan do study act circle PDSA teamwork self help formative assessment and Responsibility Identity Commitment Empowerment cultural skills RICE etc help students learn well In summary MEHS built up a new model of implementing TQM in the student's learning environment It should be noted that there are also some points of weakness to consider However as a whole implementing TQM in MEHS was successful It is the points of success that will be examined in the case study Quality Goes to School American Association of School Administrators,1994 In 1991 the American Association of School Administrators AASA published An Introduction to Total Quality for Schools to initiate its new learning network This second collection of readings on quality management in education offers a series of perspectives through which readers can refine their own definitions and knowledge It contains lessons from practice within classrooms buildings districts and statewide networks as well as in fields such as vocational and special education Also included are summaries historical overviews lessons from other fields and assessments of current status The first section of the book gives the broad picture of how in the 1980s the United States began to listen to W Edwards Deming and others advocating a new nonhierarchical system of management based on teamwork empowerment of workers and commitment to continuous improvement The second section describes how educators interpret quality management principles in education and the third shows how these principles are being applied in classrooms schools school districts community colleges and universities The final section contains articles from AASA s newsletter Quality Network News contributed by educators who describe their own experiences with quality management Appended are lists of further readings about quality and other AASA resources on quality management in education bibliographic credits for each article an author index and a school district index MLF
