State Of The Language English Observed:

The State of the Language Philip Howard,1986 A Dictionary of the English Language Noah Webster,1831 A Dictionary of True Etymologies Adrian Room,2026-05-01 Originally published in 1986 this dictionary gives the true etymologies as far as they are known of many English words that have frequently come to be associated with quite another false origin Among such words are those that have long been wrongly attributed in the language such as acorn belfry carnation mosaic and saltcellar which are nothing to do with corn bell coronation Moses or cellar as it appears but have quite a different etymology In tracing back these and many other such misleading associations to their true origin the book also exposes some of the more popular theories about words and their etymologies such as the Welsh rabbit that is really a Welsh rare bit Nearly 1 200 words are so explained and their true etymologies given History of Soybeans and Soyfoods in China and Taiwan, and in Chinese Cookbooks, Restaurants, and Chinese Work with Soyfoods Outside China (1024 BCE to 2014) William Shurtleff,H.T. Huang,Akiko Aoyagi,2014-06-22 The world s most comprehensive well documented and well illustrated book on this subject With extensive index 372 photographs and illustrations Free of charge in digital format on Google Books

A Bibliography of Writings on the English Language from the Beginning of Printing to the End of 1922 Arthur Garfield Kennedy,1927 A Civilising Mission? Judith A. Simon,Linda Tuhiwai Smith,2001 This book offers an important contribution both to Maori history and to the history of the indigenous peoples Remote Online Language Assessment: Eliciting Discourse from Children and Adults Natalia Gagarina,Angel Chan,Wenchun Yang,2024-08-20 Being able to collect valid data is crucial for empirical science disciplines such as linguistics developmental psycholinguistics clinical psycholinguistics and speech and hearing sciences In recent years there has been an increasing use of digital devices for remote language assessments such as online elicitation of language samples apps for eliciting expressive and productive lexical abilities and online questionnaires With the ongoing COVID 19 pandemic still affecting many lives globally there have been numerous disruptions of face to face in person language assessments leading many researchers to conduct their language assessments online Despite the necessity of remote language assessments and the convenience they may bring to both assessors and assessees the potential merits limits and problems of remote testing have not yet been systematically explored and understood This timely Research Topic seeks contributions that mobilize new evidence and or insightful and nuanced discussions to address questions such as can we control online testing so that it is as good as face to face in person testing and if so how Do we have evaluative evidence of such practices and if so how robust is the evidence What adaptations and concerns can and cannot be accommodated at the present time What opportunities are offered by recent technological advances Are there certain conditions in which online testing works better or worse Last but not least how do differences between offline in person language assessments and online remote assessments affect the results of testing The current topic has two main foci the first deals with the assessment of conversational discourse in general and narrative discourse in particular in both children and young adults Communicative competence at the discourse level has been considered an essential and ecologically valid component in language assessments of children and adults for three key reasons 1 this competence is crucial for an individual s everyday functioning and academic and social life 2 it provides information about an individual s socio cognitive and linguistic abilities and 3 it is a versatile test of language skills at the levels of content form use and their integration The second focus is on comparing the results elicited via in person assessments and remote online assessments This Research Topic welcomes empirical articles discussing new evidence perspective and opinion papers on issues at the conceptual methodological interface and methods articles presenting approaches that can offer opportunities for remote testing of developmental discourse supported by recent technological advances Potential themes may include but are not limited to comparisons of remote versus in person testing modes using a within participants research design learner variables such as age gender language status monolingual multilingual and clinical status typically developing children and adults children and adults with clinical conditions such as developmental language disorder autism spectrum disorder which may affect the efficacy of remote testing linguistic variables such as the use of referential and relational devices and mental state language which may be subject to more variations when being assessed remotely new methods that offer opportunities for the remote testing of developmental and adult discourse supported by recent technological advances articles addressing the same research question within developmental narrative discourse but using different i e either online or offline research methods
