

INCLUSIVE LANGUAGE

Inclusive language is language that acknowledges diversity, promotes equality and instills the importance of respect toward all people.

OVERVIEW

Inclusive language refers to the use of language that promotes equality, respect, and sensitivity towards all individuals, regardless of their gender, race, ethnicity, sexual orientation, ability, or other characteristics. It aims to avoid language that excludes, stereotypes, or marginalizes certain groups. Inclusive language encourages the use of terms and expressions that reflect diversity.

EXAMPLES

- Gender Neutrality: Instead of using 'fireman,' inclusive language would use 'firefighter' to acknowledge and include individuals of all genders in the profession.
- Disability Discourse: An inclusive language practice would be to use 'person with a disability' rather than defining someone solely by their disability, such as saying 'wheelchair user' instead of 'wheelchair-bound.'
