R.,1901 A Structural and Lexical Comparison of the Tunica, Chitimacha, and Atakapa Languages (Classic Reprint) John R.

Swanton,2017-10-12 Excerpt from A Structural and Lexical Comparison of the Tunica Chitimacha and Atakapa Languages In the main the culture of all of these peoples did not differ materially but that of the Tunica and Chitimacha partook of the higher or at any rate more complicated civilization of the lower Mississippi while the Atakapa Were on a much lower level measured by our ordinary standards The Tunica peoples had special religious houses or temples set On mounds like the other lower Mississippi tribes and they were probably organized into exogamous clans although of that there is no proof other than indications embodied in the terms of relationship recorded at a late date The Chitimacha also had special religious houses and a cult which seems to have resembled in general that of the Choctaw If the testimony of the survivors may be relied upon they also had totemic clans with matrilineal descent The Atakapan peoples however seem to have been divided into a great number Of small bands having little coherence either inside or with one another There is not the slightest evidence that they had clans or gentes and the terms of relationship preserved are such as are encountered among loosely organized peoples without artificial exogamous groups Like the Chitimacha their principal reliance for food was upon fish and Shell fish While they seem to have raised some corn they cultivated the ground far less than either the Tunica or the Chitimacha Their cultural allies were the Karankawa Tonkawa and other peoples of central and southern Texas lying west of them About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Structural and Lexical Comparison of the Tunica, Chitimacha, and Atakapa Languages John Reed Swanton, 1919 The Historic Indian Tribes of Louisiana Fred B. Kniffen, Hiram F. Gregory, George A. Stokes, 1994-09-01

Although many specialized studies have been written about Louisiana's Indian tribes no complete account has appeared regarding their long varied history The Historic Indian Tribes of Louisiana From 1542 to the Present is a highly informative study that reconstructs the history and cultural evolution of these people This study identifies tribal groups charts their migrations within the state and discusses their languages and customs According to the authors the first descriptions of Louisiana Indians are contained in accounts kept by members of Hernando de Soto's expedition In the 1540s The next recorders of Indian life were the French in the 1700s European influences irrevocably marked the Indians lives The natives lost tribal lands to the new settlers and replaced many of their weapons and tools with those of the Europeans Diseases apparently introduced by the Spaniards decimated entire tribes and caused the disappearance of certain tribal languages that had never been recorded However much of Indian material culture has survived even to the present including the dugout canoe or pirogue and the beautiful cane basketry of the Chitimacha tribe According to the authors current figures show that Louisiana has the third largest native American population in the eastern United States Several of Louisiana's present day Indian tribes such as the Tunica Biloxi Choctaw and Koasati entered the state in the second half of the eighteenth century They gradually established settlements throughout the state at times displacing the native tribes Today many of Louisiana's Indians work in business and industry and as farmers and loggers The Historic Indian Tribes of Louisiana is a valuable contribution to the literature on Louisiana History It will be of interest to anthropologists geographers historians and anyone wanting to know more about these important members of Louisiana s population Structural and Lexical Comparison of the Tunica, Chitimacha and Atakapa Languages John R.
