Hunziker, 2026-03-05 Since its founding the United States has colonized more than five hundred Indigenous nations in North America and dozens more in the Pacific and the Caribbean Alyssa A Hunziker considers how American imperialism in the Pacific typically thought of as separate from the colonization of North America is deeply intertwined with US settler colonialism By examining novels poems and archival records Hunziker analyzes literary convergences between global Indigenous communities and uses an Indigenous transpacific methodology to examine how contemporary authors from Native America Hawai i Guam the Marshall Islands and the Philippines reimagine and uncover their historical connections While the colonial archive has been discussed in both postcolonial and Indigenous studies archives appear frequently in contemporary Indigenous fiction Hunziker contends that Indigenous authors use literary form to emphasize seemingly peripheral or extra histories that have been erased from official US records Using literary archives like a character s collection of calendars a degrading film reel or a discovery of unorganized notes alongside discussions of institutional archives the authors under discussion subvert Indigenous erasure by questioning how history is told and which stories go unrecognized Billboard , 1984-11-17 In its 114th year Billboard remains the world s premier weekly music publication and a diverse digital events brand content and data licensing platform Billboard publishes the most trusted charts and offers unrivaled reporting about the latest music video gaming media digital
