Bland,Ashraf Esmail,2012-10-08 This book identifies the barriers between social work intervention in education and government funded programs that impact African American students The chapters approach these issues from a child centered perspective which has proven critical in developing positive and sustainable relationships with African American students As children begin to understand more about their lives and the world around them they also develop opinions that help them identify who they are as individuals and where they see themselves in the world From a qualitative research methodology approach trust has been identified as a fundamental factor and potential barrier among all variables acknowledged Interviews with ten African American high school and college students were conducted to discuss their perspectives on education family life peer interaction and social work intervention Social Work Services in Schools Daniel Scott Diehl,2003 In the wake of current school reform efforts that focus on public private partnerships social workers have a key role While research has shown that social workers can have positive impacts on students school adjustment evaluations of overall practice models continue to be limited Bronstein Kelly 1998 Therefore the purpose of this dissertation was to evaluate a community school model of social work practice by examining improvements in student related behaviors and reductions in student and family concerns identified by teachers and parents Generally parents and teachers reported improvements in students interpersonal intrapersonal and academic functioning Additionally teachers and parents reported reductions in the intensity of individual student treatment concerns Parents also reported decreased intensity in the concerns identified for their family This evaluation served to extend research related to social work in schools and provided further support for this specialized field of social work practice Findings are discussed in the context of improved school adjustment The Domains and Demands of School Social Work Practice
