ABSTRACT

Poetry is rich in terms of its selectively chosen dictions that have to be read aloud to be enjoyed. This descriptive qualitative study investigated fourth-semester students' perception on the use of poetry to teach speaking. Students' perceptions were collected through an archives study comprising 75 students' essay projects about using poetry to teach speaking. The result indicated that 75 students perceived poetry is effective in developing six aspects of students' speaking skills, namely vocabulary, pronunciation, grammar, comprehension, confidence, and fluency. 41 (54.66%) students perceived that teaching speaking through poetry enriches students' vocabulary by representing unique words. 16 (21.33%) students perceived that using poetry to teach speaking practices students' pronunciation through poetry reading strategy. In terms of grammar mastery, 8 (10.66%) students believed that poetry was able to familiarize students with sentence structure. Four (5.33%) students perceived that through poetry analysis, students must comprehend and share their interpretation of the content and context used in the poems. There were 4 (5.33%) students perceived that poetry helps students be more confident in communication. Two (2.66%) students perceived that fluency in speaking could be trained using poetry by exposing students to the rhythm, making their intonation improved.

1. INTRODUCTION

Teaching English as Foreign Language is not only about teaching vocabulary and language structure to make students understand English sentences (Alqaharani, 2020; Ivanova, 2019; Khoirunnissa et al., 2018). It is about developing students' language skills to enable them to use English naturally. Therefore, it requires attractive instructional media as the stimulus for the students to be able to master the language skills (Kaowiwattanakul, 2020; Mahmud, 2017; Nerri, 2017). English teachers usually use technology-based media or varied forms of literature as teaching media to teach English (Kaowiwattanakul, 2020; Mahmud, 2017). Literature becomes the most chosen media to be integrated into teaching English in order to expose students to the target language (Freyn, 2017; Ismail, 2021; Mahmud, 2017; Rahman, 2018). Literature is considered as an effective tool for language teaching purposes (Freyn, 2017; Ismail, 2021; Jababeh, 2019). Many experts believe that the use of literature exposed students with target language in a natural way since it provides students with language in context rather than language usage (Freyn, 2017; Ismail, 2021).

Poetry is pieces of creative writing that express deep feeling or noble thought through rhythmical composition and beautiful language (Kennedy, 2005). It is composed with the desire to communicate experiences and feeling. Poetry is expressed in written or spoken to produce pleasure through beautiful, elevated, imaginative, or profound thoughts (Riffaterre, 1978; Shelley, 2002). The uniqueness of poetry is that it employs words that are excluded from common usage. It has its own grammar that is not based on the standard. Poetry is commonly used to express meaning indirectly. It employs symbolic meaning or connotation. Kennedy (2005) mentions 3 basic aspects of poetry namely denotation and connotation, imagery, and figurative language. A word used in poetry has at least one denotation and it also has connotation or additional meaning based on the context. Imagery refers to the sequences of words that present any sensory experiences. Figurative language is used to communicate truths or feeling that literal words cannot express. Therefore, poetry plays a role in teaching phrases, structure, and language construction.

Poetry has become one of the literary genres which is used frequently in EFL classroom (Ismail, 2021; Kaowiwattanakul, 2020). Poetry is used by English teachers in their classrooms to teach English to students at various levels since it provides an attractive language learning environment (Abida & Kuswardani, 2018; Iida & Chamcharatsri, 2020; Sigvardsson, 2020). Teaching English through poetry is able to maintain students' motivation to improve their English skills because of its length and unique linguistic features (Iida & Chamcharatsri, 2020). Poetry can be used to promote the development of students receptive and productive skills by adjusting with the level of students comprehension (Beymer et al., 2020; Tomak, 2021).

Studies on how poetry is used to improve student's language skills have been conducted. Some studies have found that poetry becomes an effective media to teach language skills (Beymer et al., 2020; Cushing, 2018; Freyn, 2017; Hirsch &
