Randolph, Assistant Professor of City and Regional Planning Gregory F Randolph, 2026-04 In Urbanization from Within Gregory F Randolph challenges the conventional story of urbanization as a permanent exodus from rural areas to cities providing a novel understanding of how humans are becoming an increasingly urban species Drawing on research in the Indian state of Bihar Randolph argues that agrarian villages are transforming into urban towns through internal population growth circular out migration and the emergence of a bootstrapped non farm economy He details these mechanisms while linking them to a set of global forces shaping twenty first century urban transitions in and beyond India with important insight for scholars practitioners and policymakers China's Urban Transition John Friedmann, 2005 A timely and thorough analysis of the rapid urban growth in China California. [Studies in the Cost of Urban Transportation Service Frederick William Doolittle, 1916 Urban Transition in Hanoi Danielle Labbé, 2021-01-15 Vietnam is in the midst of one of the world's most rapid and intensive rural to urban transitions In Hanoi heritage preservation has gained significant policy attention over the last decades but efforts continue to focus on the Old Quarter and Colonial City to the exclusion of collective socialist housing complexes and former village areas and natural features such as canals and urban lakes Parks and public spaces are urgently needed to offset the high residential densities and to improve the quality of life of residents Motor vehicles continue to fuel the growth in transportation Significant efforts were recently made to establish a mass transit system but progress there is slow More attention should be paid to improving the existing transportation system and to reduce dependence on fossil fuels Investments in new housing estates have fuelled a speculative real estate market but failed to address adequately the needs of the vulnerable segments of the population Regional integration is a challenge as the city expands and swallows the peri urban areas around the city Urban Planning for Transitions Nicolas Douay, Michael Minja, 2021-03-24 Today as cities undergo rapid and dynamic transformations riddled with uncertainties about the future the roles of urban planning and urban planners lie in one of these new crossroad moments Climate change urban migration social inclusion health emergencies and financial and economic crises have elevated urbanization to newer heights of complexity that can only be tackled by integrating a multitude of scenarios strategies and discourses in order to create an urban future that is resilient and sustainable Urban planners have come up with transition proposals and concepts that they hope will be able to respond to cities challenges and ultimately allow them to adapt and make the transition into more robust urban areas This book presents and discusses various urban transition strategies action plans and programs that have been proposed or even conducted in different countries all over the world Different countries require different strategies but they all have the same goal in mind each of them trying to address urban complexities and cope with the rapid pace at which the world is evolving Rethinking Urban Transitions Andrés Luque-Ayala, Simon Marvin, Harriet Bulkeley, 2018-03-15 Rethinking Urban Transitions provides critical insight for societal and policy debates about the potential and limits of low carbon urbanism It draws on over a decade of international research undertaken by scholars across multiple disciplines concerned with analysing and shaping urban sustainability transitions It seeks to open up the possibility of a new generation of urban low carbon transition research which foregrounds the importance of political geographical and developmental context in shaping the possibilities for a low carbon urban future The book's contributions propose an interpretation of urban low carbon transitions as primarily social political and developmental processes Rather than being primarily technical efforts aimed at measuring and mitigating greenhouse gases the low carbon transition requires a shift in the mode and politics of urban development The book argues that moving towards this model requires rethinking what it means to design practise and mobilize low carbon in the city while also acknowledging the presence of multiple and contested developmental pathways Key to this shift is thinking about transitions not solely as technical infrastructural or systemic shifts but also as a way of thinking about collective futures societal development and governing modes a recognition of the political and contested nature of low carbon urbanism The various contributions provide novel conceptual frameworks as well as empirically rich cases through which we can begin to interrogate the relevance of socio economic political and developmental dimensions in the making or unmaking of low carbon in the city The book draws on a diverse range of examples including world cities and ordinary cities from North America South America Europe Australia Africa India and China to provide evidence that expectations aspirations and plans to undertake purposive socio technical transitions are both emerging and encountering resistance in different urban contexts Rethinking Urban

Transitions is an essential text for courses concerned with cities climate change and environmental issues in sociology politics urban studies planning environmental studies geography and the built environment India Henrik Valeur,2014 Development urbanism is an interdisciplinary field that focuses on sustainable urban development as a means to combat poverty and protect the environment in the so called developing world Based on his experiences teaching researching and practicing in India the author discusses some of the problems related to the urban transition of India including the air pollution the contamination and depletion of fresh water resources the precarious food situation the lack of proper housing and various environmental and human health problems related to motorized transportation He also proposes a number of possible solutions including the use of plants and natural ventilation to create clean indoor air the revitalization of an existing system of water canals the creation of vertical kitchen gardens in a rehabilitation colony a strategy for making an entire neighborhood car free and a design for self designed low cost housing The Urban Transition John Friedmann,1983

Changing Urban Education Clarence Nathan Stone,1998 With critical issues like desegregation and funding facing our schools dissatisfaction with public education has reached a new high Teachers decry inadequate resources while critics claim educators are more concerned with job security than effective teaching Though urban education has reached crisis proportions contending players have difficulty agreeing on a common program of action This book tells why Changing Urban Education confronts the prevailing naivete in school reform by examining the factors that shape reinforce or undermine reform efforts Edited by one of the nation s leading urban scholars it examines forces for change and resistance in urban education and proposes that the barrier to reform can only be overcome by understanding how schools fit into the broader political contexts of their cities Much of the problem with our schools lies with the reluctance of educators to recognize the profoundly political character of public education The contributors show how urban political contexts vary widely with factors like racial composition the role of the teachers union and relations between cities and surrounding metropolitan areas Presenting case studies of original field research in Baltimore Chicago Houston and six other urban areas they consider how resistance to desegregation and the concentration of the poor in central urban areas affect education and they suggest how cities can build support for reform through the involvement of business and other community players By demonstrating the complex interrelationship between urban education and politics this book shows schools to be not just places for educating children but also major employers and large spenders of tax dollars It also introduces the concept of civic capacity the ability of educators and non educators to work together on common goals and suggests that this key issue must be addressed before education can be improved Changing Urban Education makes it clear to educators that the outcome of reform efforts depends heavily on their political context as it reminds political scientists that education is a major part of the urban mix While its prognosis is not entirely optimistic it sets forth important guidelines that cannot be ignored if our schools are to successfully prepare children for the future Revitalizing Urban Neighborhoods William Dennis Keating,Norman

Krumholz, Philip Star, 1996 Since the 1950s and the advance of urban renewal local governments and urban policy have focused heavily on the central business district However such development has all but ignored the inner city neighborhoods that continue to struggle in the shadows of high rise America This analysis of urban neighborhoods in the United States from 1960 to 1995 presents fifteen essays by scholars of urban planning and development Together they show how urban neighborhoods can and must be preserved as economic cultural and political centers
