The Tunisian Campaign Philip Lamb, 2026-08-30 The outbreak of World War II started on the 1 September 1939 when Germany under Adolf Hitler invaded Poland On the 3 September 1939 the United Kingdom and France in support of Poland declared war on Germany At the start of World War II the battles were fought mainly in mainland Europe However Mussolini not to be out done signed a pact with Hitler and the Axis Force of Germany and Italy were formed The Axis Force would be operational in North Africa Italy Greece and the Baltic States The Axis Force aim was to capture and secure the rich oil reserves found in Egypt Iraq and Iran You may ask Why To keep their joint forces operational Hitler or Mussolini need vast quantities of oil and fuel and the oil reserves found in the then Middle East would serve them well With Churchill now Prime Minister one of his major concerns were the rich oil fields found in the Middle East and he was determined to ensure that these did not fall into the arms of the Axis Force Allied forces from around the world and the commonwealth were quickly assembled and were posted to North Africa The battles fought during the North African Campaign such as Tobruk and El Alamein are all well recorded During the North Africa Campaigns of 1940 to 1943 the Allied Forces were confronted by a formidable force of German and Italian troops known as the Axis Force who were determined to defeat the Allied Forces and capture the oil rich countries of Egypt Iraq and Iran At the time Churchill had directed the Allied Forces to stop and prevent this from happening at all costs After the Battles in North Africa especially after the allied win at El Alamein 1942 the Axis Forces were made to retreat and were forced back to Tunisia which is where the book is set On December 11 1941 the United States of America entered World War II following the attack by the Japanese on Pearl Harbour on December 7 1941 The USA along with other allies landed in Morocco and Algiers under Operation Torch November 1942 to May 1943 With the 8th Army having pushed the Axis Force back westward into Tunisia it became imperative that the captured 250 000 Axis Troops were prevented from evacuating to Sicily and mainland Europe D Day 6th June 1944 being just 13 months away We will never know what impact if any the 250 000 troops would have had on D Day suffice to say the battles would certainly have been considerably harder

Lighting the Torch Sam Wallace, 2025-05-15 Fought between November 1942 and May 1943 the Second World War's Tunisian Campaign has often been described as where the Allies learned to fight The vital culmination of the conflict fought across the breadth of North Africa as well as an important stepping stone to the opening of a second front in Europe Tunisia saw American British and French forces on air land and sea combine to drive Axis forces from the African continent for good Yet despite Tunisia's importance to the grand narrative of the Second World War it has remained chronically neglected by scholars particularly in regard to the lessons the Allies derived from their experiences during the campaign This monograph examines the much understudied Tunisian Campaign through the lens of military learning shedding light on an oft ignored aspect of the North African Campaign whilst providing a major contribution to our understanding of how Allied forces learned and evolved prior to their return to Europe in 1943 44 Lighting the Torch demonstrates that it was in North Africa where the Allies were able to develop the organisations doctrines and processes necessary to prosecute an effective multinational campaign on air sea and land as well as develop the command talent combat experience and technologies to fight and win battles successfully These lessons would prove crucial when the Allies finally returned to the European continent underpinning the successful invasions of Sicily Italy and Normandy and allowing the Allies to fight their way across the continent towards ultimate Axis surrender Resistance and Liberation Douglas Porch,2024-01-25 New history of la France libre Vichy collaboration and the resistance from the campaigns in Tunisia and Italy to Liberation The Army Air Forces in World War II: Europe, torch to pointblank, August 1942 to December 1943 ,1948 A Soldier's Story Omar N.
