ABSTRACT

On the assumption that the successful implementation of any inclusive policy is largely dependent on educators being positive about it, a great deal of research has sought to examine teachers' attitudes towards the integration and, more recently, the inclusion of children with special educational needs in the mainstream school. This paper reviews this large body of research and, in so doing, explores a host of factors that might impact upon teacher acceptance of the inclusion principle. The analyses showed evidence of positive attitudes, but no evidence of acceptance of a total inclusion or 'zero reject' approach to special educational provision. Teachers' attitudes were found to be strongly influenced by the nature and severity of the disabling condition presented to them (child-related variables) and less by teacher-related variables. Further, educational environment-related variables, such as the availability of physical and human support, were consistently found to be associated with attitudes to inclusion. After a brief discussion of critical methodological issues germane to the research findings, the paper provides directions for future research based on alternative methodologies.

made to address this fragmentation by introducing a unitary patent system The most recent attempt the EU unitary patent system will be the first of its kind It is expected to significantly change the EPS However rather than reducing existing fragmentation it will likely add to it Based on an analysis of the current and forthcoming system the book argues that the inherent nature of fragmentation within the EPS needs to be recognised and suggests that a multifaceted approach is required to respond to it Uniquely it draws on work regarding fragmentation outside of the patent and intellectual property regimes gaining insights from both European law making and the international legal system These insights are used to investigate current responses to fragmentation in the EPS Interpretations of substantive patent law are examined including claim construction Actavis v Eli Lilly exceptions to patentability related to uses of human embryos for industrial or commercial purposes WARF Bristol ISCC and products resulting from essentially biological processes Broccoli and Tomatoes II G3 19 Attempts towards convergence in these areas have had mixed results and in some instances fragmentation may be necessary However similar techniques to those applied in the international legal system to respond to fragmentation are being used in the EPS and where this is seen it has been to good effect It is argued that these methods should be recognised structured and promoted to make our response to fragmentation more effective Fragmentation and the European Patent System will be of interest to academics students and practitioners looking for a new perspective on the EPS
