

STRIPER:

THE SUPER FISH

---

In 1941, the stripers, as had been their custom for eons, followed the Santee and Cooper Rivers in South Carolina in their normal spawning pattern. But the stripers found things a little different that year; dams blocked their return to saltwater. For the first time in history large numbers of the superfish were trapped in freshwater. They thrived and spawned and today freshwater stripers are found in over 30 states and Russia!
