Virtual Combat:

The Virtual Combat Air Staff Arthur F. Huber, 1996 This study investigated the nature of the future combat air staff in the context of air war in the information age and how application of information age technology could reduce deployment of personnel while maintaining or improving staff support to the air campaign through the use of virtuality Within the confines of this study virtuality refers to the concept that not all elements of a staff may be physically located in the same place that communication technology may allow for the retrieval of information resources from diverse centers of responsibility and that staff assets may be reabsorbed into host centers after the cessation of hostilities The results of this research indicate that the rapid advances now progressing within the technological realm as well as within organizational theory and practice presage a different paradigm for the future combat air staff This report should be of interest to the Air Force other services and commands that are seeking ways to reduce physical forward combat area presence while maintaining combat effectiveness

Virtual Weaponry Aaron Tucker, 2017-10-26 This book examines the convergent paths of the Internet and the American military interweaving a history of the militarized Internet with analysis of a number of popular Hollywood movies in order to track how the introduction of the Internet into the war film has changed the genre and how the movies often function as one part of the larger Military Industrial Media Entertainment Network and the Total War Machine The book catalogues and analyzes representations of a militarized Internet in popular Hollywood cinema arguing that such illustrations of digitally networked technologies promotes an unhealthy transhumanism that weaponizes the relationships between the biological and technological aspects of that audience while also hierarchically placing the human components at the top Such filmmaking and movie watching should be replaced with a critical posthumanism that challenges the relationships between the audience and their technologies in addition to providing critical tools that can be applied to understanding and potentially resist modern warfare
