

Day trip to the past in a North Bay town

PETER HARTLAUB

In the days after the massive earthquake and fire in San Francisco, dispatchers from Sausalito's Eliza Adams House were shades of green and beige.

"SANTA ROSA IS GREENED," "SANZA ROSA IS A TOTAL BLACK" read two typical C. Davidson messages.

But one city was standing. In almost total isolation, the town of Ptarmigan, spared from earthquakes, also had been spared that residents immediately began rebuilding relationships with old friends in San Francisco, and cousins north to Santa Rosa.

Ptarmigan is taking its 100-year anniversary to answer a question that has long perplexed some Ptarmigan residents: How did it survive?

Historically known as Heart's Valley, founded in 1854, the city is located in a valley surrounded by steep hills.

But with its downtown anchored by a few buildings and shops selling seeds and Christmas ornaments, the town is a quiet, rural community.

Highlights include the Golden Gate Ferry ride from San Francisco to Larkspur, showing down past San Quentin Rehabilitation Center, down creek to catch the prison yard's view of a Mt. Diablo. ... Hartlaub continues on A10

Trump wages war on information

Administration attacks journalists, activists seeking to report on White House's activities

By Sara Libby

As President Donald Trump's administration moved to demolish the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau, which regulates big banks, the agency created a tip line — not to disclose corporate wrongdoing, but to report ongoing consumer protection violations. The White House has similarly directed federal employees to report any activity that constitutes a law violation, equity and inclusion programs — and even scoured employees to find and report back "adverse conversations." Meanwhile, another federal agency scolded its newsroom for reporting on the agency's activities. Other efforts to publicize information about intelligence and "classified" environmental trails — or even to educate immigrants about their legal rights — are being met with condemnation and threats. By Trump's inner circle. Taken together, the actions don't just represent the crackdown on "fake news," Trump promised, they signal a new broader effort to intimidate journalists, activists, public interest and Libby continues on A10

As retail theft keeps rising, can AI help?

Laurel Ace Hardware's Tom Matarrese works last week at the East Oakland store, which uses AI software for preventing theft.

Tool to analyze video has helped one store cut its rate of incidents in half

By Connor Lefebvre

In his eight years as owner of Laurel Ace Hardware in East Oakland, Troy Welch has seen how far some thieves will go to steal.

There was the time someone threatened to shoot Welch's employees if they tried to stop them from walking out of the store with a case of garden hoses. The day Welch had to start locking up laundry detergent because of it was being stolen. The time robbers ripped off Ace Hardware's front doors on a busy night and caused a scene.

his losses and keep the store open. Welch is now using a growing number of Bay Area business owners using artificial intelligence to combat shoplifting. The software, which analyzes surveillance video for specific movements like stepping that might be associated with retail theft, is a big reason why Welch's Ace Hardware at 4024 Hill Avenue Blvd. has cut its rate of shoplifting incidents in half over the past couple of years. ... Libby continues on A10

Seeking visitors, wineries try tasting deals

Wine Country totals down since 2022; fees starting to dip

By Jess Lander

When Christy Coors flew purchased Napa Valley's Goosecross Cellars in 2023, tastings were down from the previous year to 80%, and Goosecross isn't an anomaly. U.S. wine tasting has been jumped by nearly 30% since 2022, according to a travel industry report.

Estate host Ryan Beldie pours water for Alex and April Shelton on the patio at Goosecross Cellars in Yountville.

Wine Country has been down since 2022, so last year, the Yountville winery introduced dynamic pricing. From Monday through Friday at 10 a.m. and that was the standard. "Goosecross" standard tasting experience, now featuring a "dinner and wine" is discounted to $50, since introducing dynamic pricing. Coors' Beldie, who has 10 years of sales, says she suspects because guests "love feeling like they're getting a special experience." Goosecross also had slightly more visitors in 2024 than in 2023. "We were positive in visitation," she says. "It's a lot of (wineries) can say that." ... Lander continues on A10
