

THE ELECTION

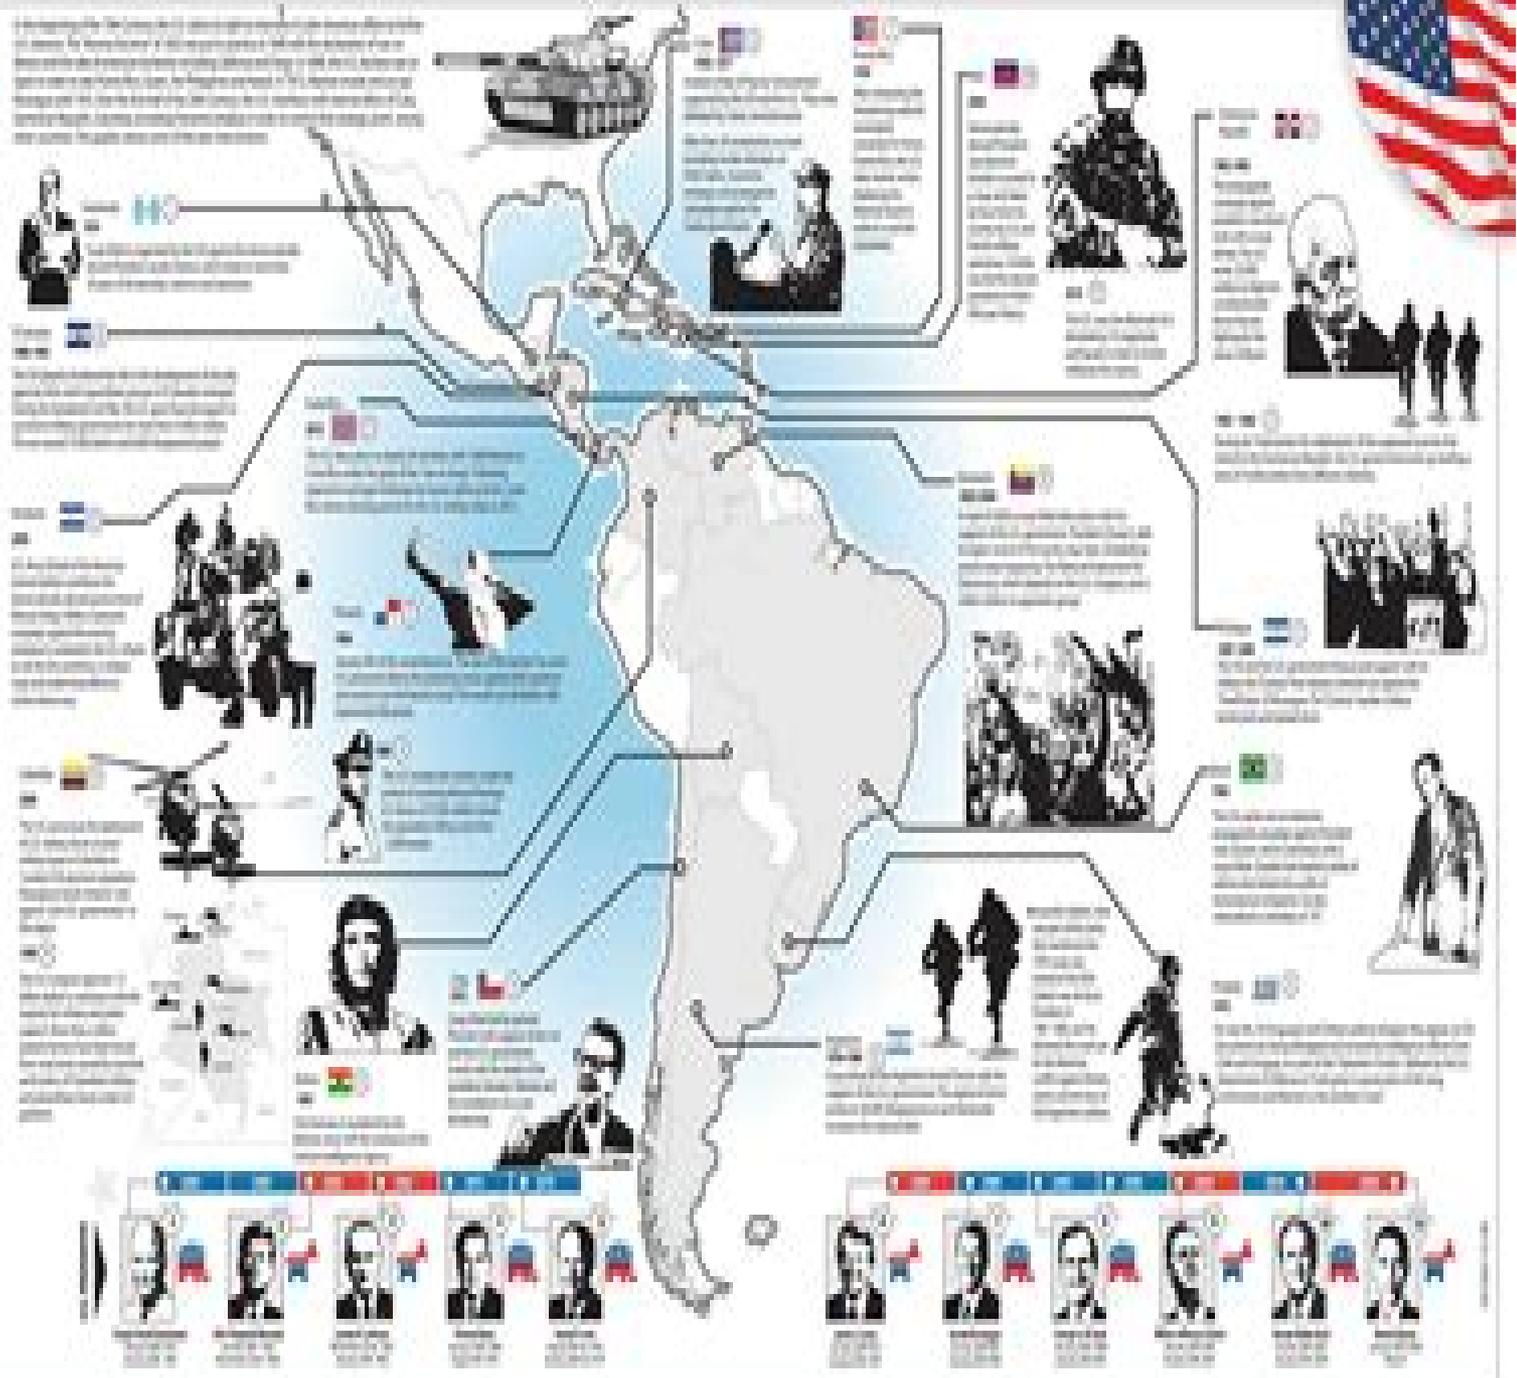

The 2008 U.S. Presidential Election was held on Tuesday, November 4, 2008. It was the 56th quadrennial election for the President and Vice President of the United States. The election was held on the same day as the 2008 U.S. House of Representatives election and the 2008 U.S. Senate election.

The Republican Party's ticket consisted of Governor Mitt Romney of Massachusetts and Alaska Governor Sarah Palin. The Democratic Party's ticket consisted of Senator Barack Obama of Illinois and Governor Joe Biden of Delaware.

The election was a historic one, as it was the first time that a woman was elected Vice President of the United States. It was also the first time that a African American man was elected President of the United States.

The election was a close one, with Obama and Biden winning the popular vote by a narrow margin of approximately 3 million votes. Obama and Biden also won the electoral college, securing 364 electoral votes to Romney and Palin's 173.

The election was a significant moment in American history, as it marked the beginning of a new era of leadership for the United States. Obama's victory was seen as a sign of hope and change, and his administration has been credited with many achievements, including the passage of the Affordable Care Act and the Dodd-Frank Wall Street Reform and Consumer Protection Act.
