Types Of A Dependencies:

Types of A-dependencies Guglielmo Cinque, 1990 Types of A Dependencies develops the theories of Bonding and Government of the principles and parameters approach to syntax pioneered by Noam Chomsky Using data from Romance languages Cinque argues for a particular way of delimiting the descriptive generalizations that concern the grammar of constituent extraction and the principles from which they derive Cinque starts by distinguishing four major cases of A Dependencies on the basis of their different behavior with respect to island conditions He discusses the distinction between long and successive cyclic wh movement indicating restrictions on the class of elements able to undergo long wh movement and offering a simplification of the locality conditions on the two types of movement Cinque then introduces a Romance construction Clitic Left Dislocation to show the value of separating the two types of wh movement and offers a theory that explains certain differences between NPs and non NPs under extraction Guglielmo Cinque is a Professor on the Faculty of Linguistics at the University of Venice
