Management of the Typhoon project Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Committee of Public Accounts,2011-04-15 This report examines the past decisions taken on the Typhoon fighter aircraft and looks at improvements that the Department can make to its delivery model to get more from industry in terms of reduced costs and better performance in the future The Department originally planned to buy 232 aircraft However in light of changed operational requirements and significant funding constraints arising from the pressures of the defence budget it is now ordering 160 aircraft and will retire the 53 oldest aircraft by 2019 leaving a long term fleet of 107 aircraft Overall it is costing the Department 20.2 billion 3.5 billion more than it first expected to buy a third fewer aircraft This is equivalent to the purchase cost of each aircraft rising by 75% from 72 million to 126 million Problems with the availability of spares mean that Typhoons are not flying the hours required and the Department is forced to cannibalise parts from other aircraft to maximise the number of aircraft available on a given day As a result it is not fully training all its pilots Support costs are budgeted at 13.1 billion but could be as high as 16.6 billion across the life of the aircraft The Department has identified potential savings of 3.5 billion to keep support costs within budget The Department will need to both reduce the cost and increase the timeliness of future collaborative spares and repairs contracts At present the contracts do little to incentivise better industry performance and to penalise failure
