A. Course Description

Welcome to your First Year Signature Course, "War and Violence in American History." This course has two broad functions. First, all semester long, we will explore the role of war and violence in American history. We will divide our inquiries into two categories: (1) "authorized violence" (which include all the legal ways governments and societies use force or the threat of force to control people, including actions in wars, occupations, police actions, incarceration, and the death penalty) and (2) "unauthorized violence": the illegal types of violence - racial violence, labor unrest, riots, vigilantism, police brutality, and terrorism - which are still problems in our society today. Our goal is to understand how both types of violence have affected the modern United States and to explore whether the rules for using violence (both formal and informal) are legitimate, fair, and agreed upon across American society.

As this is also a signature course and a freshman seminar, it will also serve as your introduction to UT's academic community and teach you some core skills for engaging in college-level thinking and learning. As we read about the past, we will also discuss the present and the issues that come up in our reading: race and class conflict, police brutality, terrorism and insurgencies, and the still-continuing struggle for equality and opportunity in American society.

B. What is a Signature Course?

The Signature Courses at the University of Texas at Austin connect students with distinguished faculty members so that students develop college-level skills in research, writing, speaking, and discussion through an approach that is both interdisciplinary and contemporary.

C. Course Learning Objectives

We will strive to achieve four course objectives: two relating to skills and two relating to content.

Specific Skill Set Objectives

1. To improve your oral and written communication skills and to build your skills in questioning your own ideas and assumptions and those held by others.
2. To improve your ability to think critically, recognize patterns, determine causes, find and analyze evidence for arguments, listen to others, and debate important ideas effectively.
