Language Complexity as an Evolving Variable Geoffrey Sampson, David Gil, Peter Trudgill, 2009-02-26 This fascinating book challenges the idea that languages are equally complex Eighteen scholars look at evidence from a wide range of times and places They consider the links between linguistic structure and change and social complexity Their conclusions challenge conventional ideas about the nature of language and contemporary theory

Grammar - Discourse - Context Kristin Bech, Ruth Möhlig-Falke, 2019-12-20 This collected volume brings together a wide array of international linguists working on diachronic language change with a specific focus on the history of English who work within usage based frameworks and investigate processes of grammatical change in context Although usage based linguistics emphasizes the centrality of the discourse context for language usage and cognition this insight has not been fully integrated into the investigation of processes of grammatical variation and change The structuralist heritage as well as corpus linguistic methodologies have favoured de contextualized analytical perspectives on contemporary and historical language data and on the mechanisms and processes guiding grammatical variation and change From a range of different perspectives the contributions to this volume take up the challenge of contextualization in the investigation of grammatical variation and change in different stages of English language history and discuss central theoretical notions such as gradable grammaticality motivation in hypervariation and hypercharacterization The book will be relevant to students and linguists working in the field of diachronic and variational linguistics and English language history

Is the Language Faculty Non Linguistic? Umberto Ansaldi, N. J. Enfield, 2016-08-15 A line of research in cognitive science over several decades has been dedicated to finding an innate language specific cognitive system a faculty which allows human infants to acquire languages natively without formal instruction and within short periods of time In recent years this search has attracted significant controversy in cognitive science generally and in the language sciences specifically Some maintain that the search has had meaningful results though there are different views as to what the findings are ranging from the view that there is a rich and rather specific set of principles to the idea that the contents of the language faculty are while specifiable in fact extremely minimal But other researchers rigorously oppose the continuation of this search arguing that decades of effort have turned up nothing The fact remains that the proposal of a language specific faculty was made for a good reason namely as an attempt to solve the vexing puzzle of language in our species Much work has been developing to address this and specifically to look for ways to characterize the language faculty as an emergent phenomenon i e not as a dedicated language specific system but as the emergent outcome of a set of uniquely human but not specifically linguistic factors in combination A number of theoretical and empirical approaches are being developed in order to account for the great puzzles of language language processing language usage language acquisition the nature of grammar and language change and diversification This research topic aims at reviewing and exploring these recent developments and establishing bridges between these young frameworks as well as with the traditions that have come before The goal of this Research Topic is to focus on current developments in what many regard as a paradigm shift in the language sciences In this Research Topic we want to ask If current explicit proposals for an innate dedicated faculty for language are not supported by data or arguments how can we solve the problems that UG was proposed to solve Is it possible to solve the puzzles of language in our species with an appeal to causes that are not specifically linguistic

Individuality in Language Change Lynn Anthonissen,2021-10-25 Linguists have typically studied language change at the aggregate level of speech communities yet key mechanisms of change such as analogy and automation operate within the minds of individual language users Drawing on lifespan data from 50 authors and the intriguing case of the special passives in the history of English this study addresses three fundamental issues relating to individuality in language change i how variation and change at the individual level interact with change at the community level ii how much innovation and change is possible across the adult lifespan iii and to what extent related linguistic patterns are associated in individual cognition As one of the first large scale empirical studies to systematically link individual and community based perspectives in language change this volume breaks new ground in our understanding of language as a complex adaptive system

Literacy at Work Tan Arda Gedik,2027-01-15 Could learning to read and write affect speakers mental grammars This book explores how literacy or the lack thereof shapes the comprehension and production of complex syntax among literate and illiterate speakers Through innovative research it reveals that native speakers do not always converge on the same grammatical structures highlighting the pivotal role of written language in facilitating this acquisition For those without literacy experience nonverbal reasoning ability plays a crucial role in compensating for the lack of literacy when dealing with complex syntax Literacy at Work challenges conventional views and offers fresh insights into the nature of linguistic competence
