

UNDERSTANDING ALLERGIES

What Is An Allergy?

An allergy is an overreaction or hypersensitivity of the body's immune system to normally harmless substances, called allergens. An allergic reaction occurs when the body's immune system responds to an allergen as if the substance were disease-causing. Subsequent responses to this substance can result in physical symptoms that range from mild to severe.

Who Gets Allergies?

The tendency to develop allergies is thought to be inherited, because they commonly develop in those who have a family history of allergies. It is possible for anyone to develop allergies at any age. Allergies often occur in clusters and affect both children and adults. This could mean allergen exposure to people with no family history or those diagnosed in those with a family history.

What Are Common Allergens?

Allergens can enter the body in a number of different ways, including inhaling pollen, drinking, ingesting food with bee stings, and contact with the skin or eyes. Common allergens include pollen, mold, animal hair or dander, dust mites, certain medications like penicillin, petroleum, and certain foods like peanuts, grains, eggs, milk, wheat, and soybeans.

Anaphylaxis: An Allergic Emergency

Anaphylaxis is a life-threatening reaction. The onset of this reaction may occur within minutes or minutes of exposure. Symptoms can include a rash with some redness of the face, hives, swelling to the neck, wheezing, tightening and swelling of the airways, trouble breathing, dizziness, and there is a drop in blood pressure. Swelling can stop and the body may stop breathing. It is important to get immediate medical attention and death can occur within minutes. In the event of an allergic reaction, the following signs and symptoms such as anaphylaxis are more likely to occur: difficulty breathing, any other allergic symptoms. Anaphylaxis is not a common reaction and can be prevented with proper medication and the help of a physician.

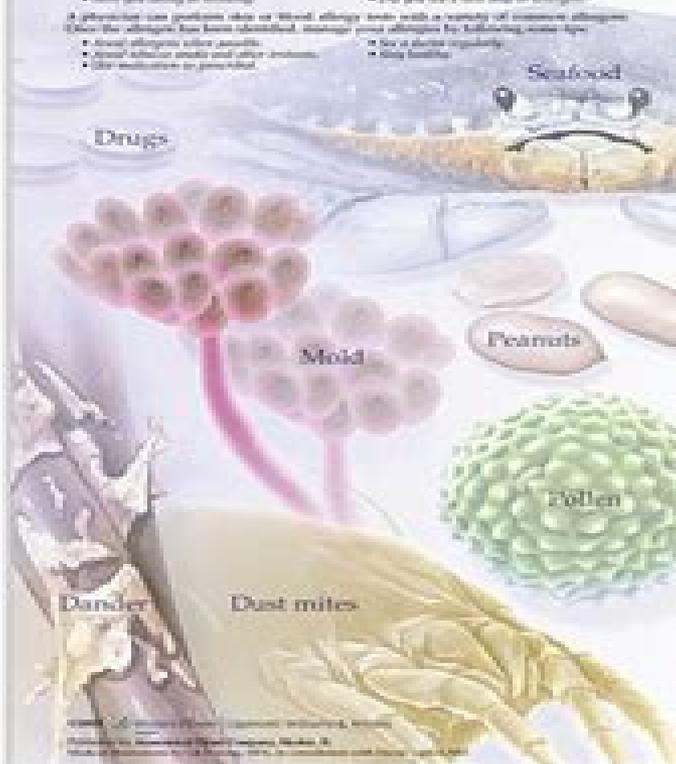

Managing Allergies

The first step in managing allergies is to identify the type of reaction you are having, whether it is an acute, chronic, or difficulty breathing. Second, try to identify the trigger in the reaction that led to the symptoms. Ask yourself a few questions:

- Did you eat anything new?
- Did you get a new pet?
- Did you get a new job or hobby?
- Did you get a new car or truck?
- Did you get a new house or apartment?
- Did you get a new job or hobby?
- Did you get a new car or truck?
