

THE HISTORY OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA

CHAPTER I. THE DISCOVERY OF AMERICA

SECTION I. THE EARLY DISCOVERERS

The history of the United States of America is a story of discovery and exploration. It begins with the first human beings who crossed the Bering Strait from Asia to North America. These early inhabitants lived in small, nomadic groups and hunted and gathered for food. Over time, they developed different cultures and languages. The first European to reach North America was Christopher Columbus in 1492. He was sailing for Spain and discovered the island of San Salvador in the Bahamas. This event marked the beginning of European colonialism in the Americas. Other explorers followed, including John Cabot, who reached the coast of North America in 1498, and Vasco da Gama, who reached India in 1498. The discovery of America led to the establishment of colonies and the eventual formation of the United States of America.
