The Givers Consequence:

Handbook of the Economics of Giving, Altruism and Reciprocity Serge-Christophe Kolm, Jean Mercier Ythier, 2006-07-20
The Handbook on the Economics of Giving Reciprocity and Altruism provides a comprehensive set of reviews of literature on the economics of nonmarket voluntary transfers. The foundations of the field are reviewed first with a sequence of chapters that present the hard core of the theoretical and empirical analyses of giving, reciprocity and altruism in economics, examining their relations with the viewpoints of moral philosophy, psychology, sociobiology, sociology and economic anthropology. Secondly, a comprehensive set of applications are considered of all the aspects of society where nonmarket voluntary transfers are significant: family and intergenerational transfers, charity and charitable institutions, the nonprofit economy, interpersonal relations in the workplace, the Welfare State and international aid. Every volume contains contributions from leading researchers. Each Handbook presents an accurate, self-contained survey of a particular topic. The series provides comprehensive and accessible surveys.

Artificial Intelligence, Automation and the Future of Competence at Work Jon-Arild Johannessen, 2020-12-07
Artificial intelligence and the autonomous robots of the Fourth Industrial Revolution will render certain jobs and competences obsolete but will also create new roles which in turn require new sets of skills. They will also transform how we produce, distribute and consume, as well as how we think. Rather than a linear understanding of evolutionary processes, we will develop a more interactive and circular interpretation. This book offers a unique and holistic perspective on the future of work in the context of Industry 4.0. It discusses the globalization of capital markets, how artificial intelligence can help organizations to be more competitive, and the new role of leadership in this technological landscape. The author argues that there are four categories of competences which will be required in order to maintain the relevance of human skills and expertise in the innovation economy. The new jobs that come into being will lend themselves to a particular set of skills. General competences will be necessary for roles involving the 4Cs of communication, creativity, collaboration and change. Specific or STEM competences will be called for across the science, technology, engineering and mathematics sectors. Human competences will lend themselves to positions comprising the SELC framework of social, emotional, leadership and cultural skills. Critical or REVE competences will be in demand for roles embracing reflection, ethics, values and the environment. The book provides a human-centric view of the current technological advancements of artificial intelligence and robotics and offers a positive outlook for human actors seeking continued relevance. It will appeal to scholars and students of the innovation economy, the knowledge society and the coming Fourth Industrial Revolution.

philosophy of justice material resources that a person has but cannot use to further increase his or her own happiness should be redistributed not only for reasons of social justice but also for reasons of formal justice because they increase the happiness of the taker without diminishing the happiness of the giver In exploring this theory the book develops a taxonomy of the various theories of social justice and shows the shortcomings behind the thesis of just happiness However the book also shows how the thesis of just happiness can be saved namely by rehabilitating philanthropy It is argued that philanthropy is the only known form that can increase the happiness of the taker without diminishing that of the giver This book will appeal to readers and scholars of philosophy politics and economics The Review of Reviews Albert Shaw,1890
