Through A Time Sieve:

Don't Look Back John Gribbin, 2017-05-05 A real scientist writing science fiction with real science what more could one ask John Gribbin is a visionary and one heck of a good storyteller Robert J Sawyer Hugo Award winning author of QUANTUM NIGHT John Gribbin widely regarded as one of the best science writers of the 20th century has also unsurprisingly been writing science fiction for many years While his novels are well known his short stories are perhaps less so He has also written under pseudonyms Here for the first time is the definitive collection of John's short stories Many were originally published in Analog and other magazines Some were the seeds of subsequent novels As well as 23 Science Fiction short stories three of which John wrote with his son Ben this collection includes two Science fact essays on subjects beloved of science fiction authors and readers In one essay John provides scientifically accurate DIY instructions for creating a time machine and in the other he argues that the Moon is in fact a Babel Fish The stories many written at a time when issues such as climate change were taken less seriously now seem very relevant again in an age of dubious politicians What underpins all of them of course is a grounding in solid science But they are also laced with a dry and subtle wit which will not come as a surprise to anyone who has ever met John at a science fiction convention or elsewhere He is however not averse to a good pun as evidenced by a song he co wrote for the Bonzo Dog Doo Dah Band The Holey Cheeses of Nazareth Despite the exhortation of this collection's title this is a perfect opportunity to look back at John's short stories If you've never read any of his fiction before now you have the chance to acquaint yourself with a body of work that while being very much of its time is certainly not in any way out of date

Gleanings of cookery, by a mother and daughter Gleanings, 1898 Gleanings of Cookery Mother and daughter, 1898 Portinia James Calvin Hooper, 1914 System Performance Tuning Gian-Paolo D. Musumeci, Mike Loukides, 2002-02-05 System Performance Tuning answers one of the most fundamental questions you can ask about your computer How can I get it to do more work without buying more hardware In the current economic downturn performance tuning takes on a new importance It allows system administrators to make the best use of existing systems and minimize the purchase of new equipment Well tuned systems save money and time that would otherwise be wasted dealing with slowdowns and errors Performance tuning always involves compromises unless system administrators know what the compromises are they can't make intelligent decisions Tuning is an essential skill for system administrators who face the problem of adapting the speed of a computer system to the speed requirements imposed by the real world It requires a detailed understanding of the inner workings of the computer and its architecture System Performance Tuning covers two distinct areas performance tuning or the art of increasing performance for a specific application and capacity planning or deciding what hardware best fulfills a given role Underpinning both subjects is the science of computer architecture This book focuses on the operating system the underlying hardware and their interactions Topics covered include Real and perceived performance problems introducing capacity planning and performance monitoring highlighting their strengths and weaknesses An integrated description of all the major tools at a system administrator's disposal for tracking down system performance problems Background on modern memory handling techniques including the memory caching filesystem implementations in Solaris and AIX Updated sections on memory conservation and computing memory requirements In depth discussion of disk interfaces bandwidth capacity considerations and RAID systems Comprehensive discussion of NFS and greatly expanded discussion of networking Workload management and code tuning Special topics such as tuning Web servers for various types of content delivery and developments in cross machine parallel computing For system administrators who want a hands on introduction to system performance this is the book to recommend The Brass Check Upton Sinclair,1920
