The Remaking Of College:

Remaking College Mitchell Stevens, Michael W. Kirst, 2015-01-07 Between 1945 and 1990 the United States built the largest and most productive higher education system in world history Over the last two decades however dramatic budget cuts to public academic services and skyrocketing tuition have made college completion more difficult for many Nevertheless the democratic promise of education and the global competition for educated workers mean ever growing demand Remaking College considers this changing context arguing that a growing accountability revolution the push for greater efficiency and productivity and the explosion of online learning are changing the character of higher education Writing from a range of disciplines and professional backgrounds the contributors each bring a unique perspective to the fate and future of U S higher education By directing their focus to schools doing the lion s share of undergraduate instruction community colleges comprehensive public universities and for profit institutions they imagine a future unencumbered by dominant notions of traditional students linear models of achievement and college as a four year residential experience The result is a collection rich with new tools for helping people make more informed decisions about college for themselves for their children and for American society as a whole

Remaking College Rebecca Chopp, Susan Frost, Daniel H. Weiss, 2014 Residential liberal arts colleges maintain a unique place in the landscape of American higher education These schools are characterized by broad based curricula small class size and interaction between students and faculty Aimed at developing students intellectual literacy and critical thinking skills rather than specific professional preparation the value proposition made by these colleges has recently come under intense pressure Remaking College brings together a large and distinguished group of higher education leaders to define the American liberal arts model to describe the challenges these institutions face and to propose sustainable solutions Both economic and strategic environments have developed to threaten these schools Since 1990 for example 35 percent of these institutions have transformed into professional colleges offering more vocational fields to their curricula while others have closed their doors entirely Is there a future for these uniquely American institutions like Vassar and Smith Macalester and Pomona Middlebury and Swarthmore Remaking College elucidates the shifting economic and financial models for liberal arts colleges and considers the opportunities afforded by technology globalism and intercollegiate cooperative models Finally it considers the unique position these schools can play in their communities and in the larger world

Remaking College Rebecca Chopp, Susan Frost, Daniel H. Weiss, 2016-02-15 As one of the most successful educational enterprises in American history the residential liberal arts college has long been emulated across all spectrums of undergraduate education in the United States and increasingly around the world These schools are characterized by broad based curricula small class size and interaction between students and faculty Aimed at developing students intellectual literacy and critical thinking skills rather than specific professional preparation the value proposition made by these colleges has recently come under intense pressure Remaking College brings together a distinguished group of higher education leaders to define the American liberal arts model to describe the challenges these institutions face and to propose sustainable solutions These essays elucidate the shifting economic and financial models for liberal arts colleges and consider the opportunities afforded by technology globalism and intercollegiate cooperative models By exploring new ideas offering bold proposals and identifying emerging lessons the authors consider the unique position these schools can play in their communities and in the larger world This collection of essays by presidents and other leaders in higher education is both clear sighted about challenges facing small liberal arts colleges and inspiring for the ways in which it clearly illustrates both the great flexibility of the sector and the deeply held values that fuel its continuing creativity S Georgia Nugent Interim President The College of Wooster Rebecca Chopp is the chancellor of the University of Denver where she is leading a comprehensive effort to transform the student experience expand the design of knowledge and engage with the liberal arts in new ways Previously she served as the president of Swarthmore College and Colgate University Susan Frost is a consultant and researcher who works with college and university leaders to help them form and execute strategic plans engage faculty in shaping their institutions futures and develop academic programs as major fundraising targets Daniel H Weiss is the president of the Metropolitan Museum of Art For over a decade he led liberal arts institutions serving as the president of Haverford College and Lafayette College

The Remaking of Man in Africa Joseph Houldsworth Oldham,B. D. Gibson,1931 Remaking the American College Campus Jonathan Silverman,Meghan M. Sweeney,2016-10-06 The built and landscaped spaces of colleges and universities radiate and absorb the values of the cultures in which they were created As economic and political forces exert pressure on administrators and as our understanding of higher education shifts these spaces can transform dramatically Focusing on the utopian visions and the dystopian realities of American campus life this collection of new essays examines campus spaces from the perspective of those who live and work there Topics include disability sustainability first year writing underrepresented groups on campus online education adjunct labor and the way profit driven agendas have shaped colleges and universities

The Journal of Education ,1915 Information Technology and the Remaking of the University Library Beverly P. Lynch,1995 The University under Pressure Elizabeth Popp Berman,Catherine Paradeise,2016-02-26 Universities are under pressure Their resource environment is evolving demands for accountability have increased and demographic shifts are changing higher educational needs This volume provides a cross national picture of how the university as an organization is reacting to adapting to and threatened by a period of intense pressure

Remaking the American University Robert Zemsky,Gregory R Wegner,William F. Massy,2005-07-11 At one time universities educated new generations and were a source of social change Today colleges and universities are less places of public purpose than agencies of personal advantage Remaking the American University provides a penetrating analysis of the ways market forces have shaped and distorted the behaviors purposes and ultimately the missions of universities and colleges over the past half century The authors describe how a competitive preoccupation with rankings and markets published by the media spawned an admissions arms race that drains institutional resources and energies Equally revealing are the depictions of the ways faculty distance themselves from their universities with the resulting increase in the number of administrators which contributes substantially to institutional costs Other chapters focus on the impact of intercollegiate athletics on educational mission even among selective institutions on the unforeseen result of higher education s outsourcing a substantial share of the scholarly publication function to for profit interests and on the potentially dire consequences of today s zealous investments in e learning A central question extends through this series of explorations Can universities and colleges today still choose to be places of public purpose In the answers they provide both sobering and enlightening the authors underscore a consistent and powerful lesson academic institutions cannot ignore the workings of the markets The challenge ahead is to learn how to better use those markets to achieve public purposes
