The Big Questions in Science and Religion Keith Ward,2008-05 Can religious beliefs survive in the scientific age Are they resoundingly outdated Or is there something in them of great importance even if the way they are expressed will have to change given new scientific context These questions are among those at the core of the science religion dialogue An Anglican priest who was once an atheist offers compelling insights into the often contentious relationship between diverse religious views and new scientific knowledge He identifies ten basic questions about the nature of the universe and human life Among these are Does the universe have a goal or purpose Do the laws of nature exclude miracles Can science provide a wholly naturalistic explanation for moral and religious beliefs Has science made belief in God obsolete Are there any good science based arguments for God Ward considers concepts from Buddhism Confucianism Taoism Islam Hinduism Judaism and Christianity while featuring the speculations of cosmologists physicians mathematicians and philosophers

Theology as Science and Its Present Position and Prospects in the Reformed Church William Hastie,1899 Reality and Scientific Theology Thomas F. Torrance,2001-11-28 In this book the author argues for a rigorous scientific theology under the double constraint of the reality of God and the reality of the world of space and time Careful attention is given to the common commitment of theological and natural science to objective knowledge and the deeply natural relation between knowledge of God the Creator and knowledge of the world he has made Stress is laid upon the stratified structure of theology and the need for a radical simplification and unification of Christian doctrine Is theology the science of God and is it concerned with objective knowledge like natural science Is there a natural theology and how is it related to knowledge of God through divine relation How is the community of faith within which dogmatic theology arises related to the social coefficient of scientific inquiry What is the place of mysticism and of art in theology Does theology have a special notion of truth and does it have its own inner logic and structure These are some of the main questions which this book seeks to answer

New Directions in Theology and Science Peter Harrison,Paul Tyson,2022-01-31 This book sets out a new agenda for science theology interactions and offers examples of what that agenda might look like when implemented It explores in innovative ways what follows for science theology discussions from recent developments in the history of science The contributions take seriously the historically conditioned nature of the categories science and religion and consider the ways in which these categories are reinforced in the public sphere Reflecting on the balance of power between theology and the sciences the authors demonstrate a commitment to moving beyond traditional models of one sided dialogue and seek to give theology a more active role in determining the interdisciplinary agenda

Investigating the question: can theology's description of the divine reality be made truly scientific? This book addresses logic and human knowledge alongside experimental religion. An important philosophical work by a prolific theologian also known for his later court case regarding conscientious objection, this book describes how it is possible to relate theological theory with religious experience. American Journal of Theology, 1906 Vols 2-6 include Theological and Semitic literature for 1898-1901, a bibliographical supplement to the American Journal of Theology and the American Journal of Semitic Languages and Literatures. After a bibliographic introduction highlighting various research trends in science and religion, Joshua Moritz explores how the current academic and conceptual landscape of theology and science has been shaped by the history of science, even as theology has informed the philosophical foundations of science. The first part assesses the historical interactions of science and the Christian faith, looking at the cases of human dissection in the Middle Ages and the Galileo affair in order to challenge the common notion that science and religion have always been at war. Part two investigates the nature of the interaction between science and Christian theology by exploring the role that metaphysical presuppositions and theological concepts have played and continue to play within the scientific process. Thoughts on Science, Theology, and Ethics John Wilson (M.A.), 1885. Toward a Christian View of a Scientific World George L. Murphy, 2001. Modern science and science-based technology have changed traditional understandings of the world in profound ways. A pastor who is also a trained scientist draws on his diverse background to help readers put today's scientific knowledge in the context of Christian faith. Murphy sees the world described by today's science as the creation of God revealed in Jesus Christ, and technology and modern medicine as ways to carry out God's purpose for the world.
