Jensen, Brenda J. Conley, 2001-07-27 This children's book was created in a compilation of true and untrue stories. Also contains happy and sad stories along with a few children's poems. Inside each children's story it was prepared and written for children to throw out the world for their enjoyment of reading and also for their learning. And for children to continue to read more as they learn about the life's emotions of happiness and sad etc. Also about many types of animals and insects and their way of life. Publishers' Circular and Booksellers' Record of British and Foreign Literature, 1896 Informing and Civilization Prof. Dr. Andrew Targowski, 2016 The aim of this book is to synthesize the role of information throughout the history of civilization's development. This will be defined through the convergence of a) the cumulative evolution and revolution of the intellect, cognition, as data, information, concepts, knowledge, and wisdom; b) labor; and c) politics, which seek to control the environment, society, and the world, applying culture and infrastructure as tools. Whereas researchers reveal the myriad of dimensions of the social order and its historiography, this book provides a synthesis of the relations which is limited to information and its informing systems and civilization within the context of historiosophie history with judgment. The method presented in this book, the architectural approach to the dynamics of civilizational development, is a new layer over the quantitative history based on statistical data. In an architectural synthesis of civilization, we seek a big picture of civilization waves in order to develop some criteria-oriented views of the world and its future predictability. To understand the crises and conflicts of civilization which are driven by technology in recent centuries, such a synthesis as well as optimism for human proactive adaptation, survival, and development must be undertaken. This approach to civilizational development should allow humans to eventually reinvent the future in a continuous manner. We, in due course, should be able to predict the rate of change and provide civilization-bridging solutions based on original thinking. It is important to remind ourselves that information is as old as our world, about 15 billion years, because plants and trees, and in general, non-human nature, produces all sorts of information, for example, the changing colors of plants and trees which is associated with the different seasons. When the first living organisms appeared on our planet, they had the ability to inform, as well, by changing forms, colors, signals, and so on. The first signs of life on our planet came into being about 3.85 billion years ago. Therefore, organism-based life on the Earth actually came to be over a period of just 130 million years. Hominids diverged from apes some 10.6 million years ago. Instinct-driven information, i.e., behavior less controlled by cognition, and the first humans, bipeds with large brains who could use tools and sound-driven information, took form around 6.25 million years ago in Southeast Africa. Homo symbolicus, who could skillfully use language, appeared about 60,000 years ago. The origin of civilization, some 6,000 years ago, marks the beginning of the first advanced information communication systems applied by humans who could even record information.
