CHALLENGING

PULLEYS

When you use a complex pulley, it is called a block and tackle. It consists of two or more pulleys, one fixed to a support and the other attached to the load. The rope is threaded through the pulleys in a way that multiplies the force applied to the rope. For example, if you use a pulley system with four pulleys, you can lift a load of 400 pounds with only 100 pounds of force.

LIVING DINOSAUR PHOTOGRAPHED

OSDARBERG — If having is believing, then we must all believe. And, unbelievable as it may seem, a real, living dinosaur was seen and photographed by 30-year-old photographer Peter Clemens. "I was shooting it on abandoned construction site on the outskirts of Cedarburg," explains Clemens. "There was no one around for miles. I heard loud, heavy snorts, and before my very eyes, this enormous creature stepped out of the woods and walked across the site. My first impulse was to turn off the camera. I felt like I was being watched."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR No wolves in New Jersey

Your article about the man who was attacked by "wolves" should have included the fact that these "wolves" have any wolves in New Jersey for more than a hundred years. The man was probably attacked by wild dogs. We have lots of those. Thanks to thoughtful writers who turn concerned pet owners out to look for themselves. Many stories about wolves have been around as long as Little Red Riding Hood. Most of the time wolves keep away from people if they can. If the wolves would reduce its teeth to a mere "wolf" tooth.

Mr. Steven With

Clemens. "After all, no one can explain Big Foot or the Loch Ness monster, but they exist. I'm aware of the existence of my picture. I may not be making science on it, but I would have liked to see the creature. But I couldn't do it on

...and I photograph Clemens. "I deliberately photographed it next to a road sign for comparison."

"I don't know what the dinosaur was, but it was a 30-year-old Mary Jones. But it is not the kind of wood that would be made by a dog—even a large bear. This animal is much heavier than that. "Parts of this state are so remote that I have no trouble believing dinosaurs could live here undisturbed," says

Clemens says that the dinosaur roamed the site for about fifteen minutes and then disappeared into the forest. "I stayed rooted to the spot for about five minutes, just waiting," he explains. "Then I realized the dinosaur might come back with a meat-eating friend, so I jumped in my car and took off. "It was real," insists Clemens. "I saw it."

...not in a and has to 1/2 about. The looks out and from inside walks its long in pulling apart. The signals back to the to drive around it.
