

An elderly man with white hair and glasses, wearing a light-colored long-sleeved shirt and dark trousers, sits on a wooden porch. He is looking down at his hands. A fluffy grey cat sits on the porch steps in front of him. The scene is set in front of a house with grey siding, a white door, and a window. The lighting is warm and golden, suggesting late afternoon or early morning. A black lantern hangs on the wall above the man.

When Your Partner Dies:

When Your Lover Dies Robert Bringham, 2008-05 This book explores key questions about women's rights and gender equality in the wake of political turmoil, demographic dislocation, institutionalized violence, and deep economic disparities. These questions focus on the balancing and enforcement of rights viewed as a secular construct within societies with deeply entrenched cultural and religious mores, and also examine the competing and sometimes contradictory claims of individual rights on the one hand and community concerns or imperatives on the other. How does a society commence the project of gender equality after a brutal history of conflict, dislocation, dispossession, exclusion, distinction, and discrimination? How are the foundations laid and legal strategies adopted and cultivated? How does a society balance what is perceived as the secular nature of rights enforcement within a context of deeply entrenched religious mores or customary norms? And ultimately why does there persist such subordination, disadvantage, and discrimination despite the existence of constitutional and legal protections for women? Utilizing the South African process of legal transformation as a paradigm, author Penelope Andrews applies this model to Afghanistan, another contemporary context of transformation. These two societies serve as counterpoints through which she engages in a nuanced and novel way with the many broader issues that flow from the attempts in newly democratic societies to give effect to the promise of gender equality.

After You Say Goodbye Paul Kent Froman, 1992-03 A very personal approach to the grief, fear, discrimination, and outrage that frequently accompany a death from AIDS. With extensive experience counseling both gay and non-gay clients in all stages of HIV involvement, Los Angeles-based psychotherapist Paul Kent Froman offers practical individual strategies and solutions to the often overwhelming emotional problems encountered by those dealing with the loss of a loved one from AIDS.

When Grief Comes Home Erin Leigh Nelson, Colleen E. Montague, LMFT, 2025-02-04 When death touches your family, you are never quite prepared. Complicating your personal pain and the need to grieve is the equally important task of helping your children understand and process the loss of a loved one. How should you answer your child's questions about death? Should you let them see you cry? How can you support their resilience? How can you help preserve memories? Drawing from their own personal and professional experience, Erin Nelson and Colleen Montague help you navigate loss alongside your child. They provide honest ways to talk to your child about death according to age and stage of development and offer ideas on how to process, honor, and integrate loss. Chapters end with reflective questions and healing activities that lead to more meaningful connection between parents and children, inspiring hope for the future. When families find healing practices together, they find ways to integrate their loss and expand their capacity to thrive. Through times of tragedy when parents and children have the support they need, the shared experience of grief can become part of their family's sacred story.
