Third World Debt:

Third World Debt and International Public Policy Seamus O'Cleireacain, 1990-01-16 This comprehensive study traces the evolution of the international debt crisis from its beginnings in the early 1970s to the present. The author uses a sample of 24 major borrower and heavily indebted countries to explore the economic forces within developing countries and the external conditions which led to the build up of serious debt and their subsequent inability to carry it. He focuses attention on the changing roles of multilateral lending agencies such as the IMF and the World Bank and examines the role played by U.S., European and Japanese commercial banks in creating conditions which led to unsustainable levels of debt among Third World borrowers. Finally, O'Cleireacain details the changing attitude of the U.S. from the early approaches of the Reagan administration through Brady Plan initiatives of the Bush administration. Scholars in development economics and international finance will find O'Cleireacain's work an important contribution to current debates over the causes of and policy responses to the mounting Third World debt crisis. In his discussion on the role of multilateral lending agencies, O'Cleireacain analyzes the lending policies of the IMF, the changing nature of IMF conditionality and the relations between debtor countries and the IMF. By examining the appropriate role of private sector capital flows which to some extent compete with lending flows available from the IMF and the World Bank, the author places the debt crisis in a wider international public policy context. He concludes that private lending by commercial banks is one of the fundamental causes of the crisis as borrowers have turned to them to avoid the watchdog role of the established multilateral lending agencies. Based on his extensive study of the sample countries, O'Cleireacain calls for the use of IMF and World Bank endorsed development strategies which require external financing but use exports to generate the foreign exchange to service foreign debt. An appendix listing U.S. Treasury and Federal Reserve support operations for debtor nations, a bibliography and an index complete the volume.

Debt Crisis in the Third World Yanhui Zhang, 2005-05-19 Seminar paper from the year 2003 in the subject Politics. Topic: Globalization. Political Economics. grade 1-3. University of Northampton. course: Global Political Economy. language: English. abstract: In the 1970s the world trade framework provided possibilities and opportunities for poor economies to grow. However the harsh reality of poverty in those new independent nations was the main obstacle for any development. Their economic conditions suggested that borrowing money and gaining foreign aids were reasonable courses in the 1970s. In the meantime the ex colonial powers began rising awareness of remaining their influence over their past conquests. Considering of remaining economic dependency western countries showed great willingness of lending money to poor nations. The result was an unprecedented flow of sources from the developed countries to the developing world. A large proportion of sources were in form of loans and international aids from commercial banks and western governments. Many developing countries had very large debts and the amount of money they owed was quickly increasing. In 1982 Mexico came finally to the brink of default on its foreign debt. The critical situation marked the beginning of the Third World Debt Crisis. In 1970 the fifteen heavily indebted nations using the World Bank classification of 1989 had an external public debt of 17 923 billion which amounted to 9 8% for their GNP By 1987 these same nations owed 402 171 billion or 47 5% of their GNP Interest payments owed by these countries went from 2 789 billion in 1970 to 36 251 billion in 1987 In 1991 the developing world as a whole owed a total external debt of 1 362 trillion or 126 5% of their total exports of goods and services that year Ferraro V Rosser M 1994 Trying to pay off the debt became a serious problem for these countries The nature and terms as well as the political conditions with them caused great hardship for their people The debt crisis in the third world is highly linked to the issues of western policies interest rates export values and confidence in the international banking system The crisis is thus an international phenomenon and to understand it fully needs a global perspective This paper will examine the origins of the debt crisis in the third world in the first part and the consequences in the second part The third part will give solutions and recommendations followed by conclusion in the fourth part
