Catalog of Copyright Entries ,1945 Navigating Oil Palm Swamps Runavia Mulyasari ,2025-09-04 Over the past few decades many rural areas in Indonesia have been undergoing a massive transformation with its natural resources being exploited more rapidly than ever before through the establishment of incredibly large mono cropping plantations of oil palm This development has led to the creation of so called New Frontier regions De Jong et al 2017 One such region in Indonesia is West Kalimantan The profound transformation of this region became a fertile breeding ground for the emergence of go betweenes Until recently little was known about the role of go betweenes in these developments and the question why some people were able to leverage the evolving economy to assume a new role or position while others could not In this thesis I examine the role of go betweenes in the cultivation of oil palm at the new resource frontier in Sintang West Kalimantan It is based on a year of field research in the region where I discovered that in the wake of the political decentralisation and regional autonomy process the social and political organization of local societies had changed considerably As a consequence go betweenes are increasingly influential in social and political practices The establishment of oil palm plantations and the long periods of their maintenance created a new lahan basah wetland for various actors to compete including a new gap to be filled by go betweenes In this sense lahan basah is not a place but rather a space marked by many opportunities The transformation and fluidity of lahan basah entails the remaking of values and norms which also explains the central position of a variety of go betweenes in the region In the past go betweenes were still structurally embedded in the social organization of societies but in Kalimantan this has changed to such an extent that beyond structural characteristics new go betweenes require to possess a range of other characteristics as well Beyond structural changes the personal characteristics and agency of go betweenes emerged as crucial factors At the same time however exploring the dialectics between socio cultural structures and people s agency did not fully explain the success or failure of go betweenes Another dimension seemed to play their manifold social relations and social networks For that reason too in order to comprehend go betweenes comprehensively why they assume and maintain their position their actions vocabulary behaviour and interactions it was also necessary to map their social relationships networks and practices The three dimensions of structure agency and social networks intertwine enabling go betweenes not just to adhere to structural norms and rules but to actively shape them for their material and non material goals and objectives From the three critical dimensions explored in this study it is evident that each dimension cannot be analysed separately to comprehend the roles of go betweenes in the oil palm setting at the new frontier in Sintang Following a close scrutiny of a variety of go betweenes in the region I demonstrate that these three dimensions in varying combinations give rise to five distinct types of go betweenes an adaptive go between a speciality go between an opposing go between a positioning go between and a go between that may be regarded as a chameleon In practice this typology is fluid and flexible for each type of go between in the so called lahan basah the adaptation of which is grounded in the situation its conditions and their objectives to maintain and sustain their role Given their role all go between in Sintang share both fundamental and complementary characteristics yet their style is intricately interconnected in a dyadic or rather triadic manner to social structures individual characteristics and social networks The entanglement of individual characteristics with structural aspects and social networks in our analysis offers a more comprehensive understanding of their position In this context go between can either withdraw or find ways to navigate the lahan basah The nodes and dimensions in lahan basah provide space for go between to connect within social spheres and in crossing hierarchical as well as horizontal relationships Consequently go between are not uniform actors but individuals with specific personal characteristics acting and moving between structural conditions and social networks showcasing their ability to seize opportunities and find ways to capitalize on them

Constructing Rhetorical Education Davida Charney, Wilma R. Ebbitt, 1992 In nineteen essays illustrating its many aspects this book offers an argument for what it takes to construct a complete rhetorical education The editors take an approach that is pragmatic and pluralistic based as it is on the assumptions that a rhetorical education is not limited to teaching freshman composition or any specific writing course and that the contexts in which such an education occurs are not limited to classrooms This thought provoking volume stresses that while a rhetorical education results in the growth of writing skills its larger goal is to foster critical thinking
