Human beings are very complex, have different personalities, and different interests. To understand the human behavior and personalities, Eric Berne developed a method Transactional Analysis (TA) in the 1950s by watching people interaction. As transaction refers to the communication exchanges or interactions between the people and Transactional analysis (TA) is a method to understand the own and other's behavior and to help them in changing the behavior.

The three important concepts of TA:

1. Structural analysis
2. Game analysis
3. Script analysis.

Structural analysis- It is a process to recognize the ego states (Parent, Adult and Child) and analyze the personality of individuals.

PAC Model

Game analysis – It is an act of observing and understanding what games are played, what the end result will be and how these games interferes with a person's relationship. Thus it analyzes the psychological games people play.

Script analysis- This method used the Script which is also known as "Life Plan" and this process is used to analyze the scripts and uncovered the decisions made by unconsciously into conscious awareness.
