The Elements of Metaphysics William R. Carter, 1990 This brief survey text contains a discussion of a number of representative metaphysical questions and some proposed resolutions to these questions The author offers balanced arguments on debated topics and draws important connections between historical and contemporary work It contains many concrete interesting examples of abstract concepts allowing students to more easily grasp the material

The 100-Year-Old Man Who Climbed Out The Window And Disappeared Jonas Jonasson, 2012-08-28 After a long and eventful life Allan Karlsson ends up in a nursing home believing it to be his last stop The only problem is that he s still in good health and one day he turns 100 A big celebration is in the works but Allan really isn t interested and he d like a bit more control over his alcohol consumption So he decides to escape He climbs out the window in his slippers and embarks on a hilarious and entirely unexpected journey It would be the adventure of a lifetime for anyone else but Allan has a larger than life backstory Not only has he witnessed some of the most important events of the twentieth century he has actually played a key role in them Quirky and utterly unique The 100 Year Old Man Who Climbed Out the Window and Disappeared has charmed readers across the world

Moral Conviction and Moral Uncertainty Francesca Bunkenborg, 2025-10-15 This book introduces a novel challenge at the intersection of normative ethics moral psychology and moral epistemology and develops a solution to it that has important implications for moral epistemology generally The challenge arises from the observation that people who act in morally heroic ways often profess certainty in the rightness of their actions Such moral conviction seems highly admirable Yet in light of our general fallibility it seems that moral certainty is epistemically unjustified It thus looks as though we would have to conclude that moral heroism comes at the price of epistemic irrationality Drawing this conclusion however is shown not be a viable option The same holds for attempts at accounting for the moral hero s conviction in alternative entirely non doxastic terms or denying its admirability on the grounds that it is entangled with fanaticism This leaves the claim that moral certainty is never epistemically justified Via an in depth discussion of the nature of epistemic justification for moral beliefs this claim is shown to be false In exceptional moral circumstances the value of living up to one s fundamental moral commitments encroaches upon the standards of epistemic justification
