Understanding Yourself and Your World Leon Carroll Marshall, William M. Brish,1944 Archaeozoology of the Near East XII C. Çakırlar, J. Chahoud, R. Berthon, S. Pilaar Birch,2019-02-28 The first international meeting of the Archaeozoology of Southwest Asia and Adjacent Areas ASWA working group of the International Council for Archaeozoology ICAZ took place at the University of Groningen in 1992. Ever since ASWA meetings have served as an inspiring gathering for those conducting archaeozoological research in Southwest Asia, the Eastern Mediterranean, North Africa, Central Asia, and the Caucasus. This book contains sixteen papers presented at the 12th ASWA meeting, hosted at its inaugural institution, the University of Groningen. Groningen Institute of Archaeology, as a continuation of the usual series and to celebrate the career of Dr. Hylke Buitenhuis, associated member and alumnus of the institute, co-organizer of the first ASWA meeting. Like other ASWA proceedings before it, this volume is full of novel theoretical and methodological approaches and new research results tackling a large variety of topics from the geometric morphometrics of sheep in the Pre-Pottery Neolithic Period to Predynastic fishing in the Upper Nile to the biogeography of hartebeest and hemione and covering the vast region stretching between Hungary in the west and Azerbaijan in the east. The volume also features an opening article by ASWA founding member M. A. Zeder on the future of archaeozoology in the region. In honor of Dr. Hylke Buitenhuis, his full bibliography is featured herein.

The Archaeology of Iran from the Palaeolithic to the Achaemenid Empire Roger Matthews, Hassan Fazeli Nashli,2022-06-30 The Archaeology of Iran from the Palaeolithic to the Achaemenid Empire is the first modern academic study to provide a synthetic diachronic analysis of the archaeology and early history of all of Iran from the Palaeolithic period to the end of the Achaemenid Empire at 330 BC. Drawing on the authors' deep experience and engagement in the world of Iranian archaeology and in particular on Iran-based academic networks and collaborations, this book situates the archaeological evidence from Iran within a framework of issues and debates of relevance today. Such topics include human-environment interactions, climate change, and societal fragility; the challenges of urban living; individual and social identity; gender roles and status; the development of technology and craft specialization; and the significance of early bureaucratic practices such as counting, writing, and sealing within the context of evolving societal formations. Richly adorned with more than 500 illustrations, many of them in color and accompanied by a bibliography with more than 3000 entries, this book will be appreciated as a major research resource for anyone concerned to learn more about the role of ancient Iran in shaping the modern world.

The Emergence of Civilisation Revisited John C. Barrett, Paul Halstead,2004 The history of archaeology is a history of great discoveries and a history of the debate about the human condition It is a history of how we understand and link to our history and it is unsurprising then that archaeology changes over time bringing new perspectives to our view of the past Thirty years on from Colin Renfrew's landmark publication The Emergence of Civilisation a group of Aegean prehistorians came together as part of the Sheffield Centre for Aegean Archaeology's Round Table discussions to acknowledge this ground breaking work and to bring the subject up to date They focus on the themes that Renfrew brought to archaeology through this work and which continue to be of significance today the way we characterise the context and the nature of change the methodological procedures that should be followed and the interpretation of the dynamics of past societies Fourteen papers from the discussions including contributions from John Cherry Todd Whitelaw and Renfrew himself examine a fascinating and diverse section of topics including settlement leadership and social status

The Rise of Metallurgy in Eurasia Miljana Radivojević, Benjamin Roberts, Miroslav Marić, Julka Kuzmanović-Cvetković, Thilo Rehren, 2021-12-23 The Rise of Metallurgy in Eurasia is a landmark study in the evolution of early metallurgy in the Balkans It demonstrates that far from being a rare and elite practice the earliest metallurgy in the world was a common and communal craft activity

Towards an Understanding of Neolithic Households in the Near East Sutee Veerawan, 2000 Tracing Pottery-Making Recipes in the Prehistoric Balkans 6th-4th Millennium BC Silvia Amicone, Patrick Sean Quinn, Miroslav Marić, Neda Mirković-Marić, Miljana Radivojević, 2019-07-31 Balkan ceramic studies is an emerging field within archaeology This book brings together diverse studies by leading researchers and upcoming scholars capturing the variety of current archaeological ethnographic experimental and scientific studies on Balkan ceramic production distribution and use

The Cultural Landscape of Prehistoric Mines Society for American Archaeology. Meeting, 2005 The papers in this volume came out of a symposium focusing on mining and its wider impact at the 66th Annual Meeting of the Society for American Archaeology A number of fundamental questions were posed to the presenters including did the raw mined material have a symbolic value were the mines considered special places were the miners craft specialists did they have a particular social niche In the wider landscape perspective it was hoped that the case studies would also throw some light upon the choices of site locations were mines and quarries simply positioned at the most convenient source of raw material or were other considerations such as quality rarity or colouration involved Arguably the special nature of certain mining locations was linked to the local communities worldview they must have been associated with traditional stories and oral histories The presence of graffiti or rock art can often betray a special location Similarly assemblages of carefully placed artefacts or pottery can also reveal specialised deposition even amongst relatively mundane functional tool types Finally the rare occurrence of burials in some mines and quarries offers further perspectives on how these sites may have been perceived by contemporary communities The archaeological record does suggest a multiplicity of activities were focussed upon some mining sites which do not easily fit with interpretations of extraction strategies Although it could never be effectively argued that all mining had ritualised or ceremonial undertones in some cases there was a definite and demonstrable special nature to the mining activity this book presents some of those case studies Oxbow Books 2004 Scotland Kevin J. Edwards, Ian B. M. Ralston, 1997-03-11 The results of recent field research are incorporated broader hypotheses are considered and outstanding problems summarized in an engrossing and well argued text Proceedings of the Prehistoric Society of East Anglia, 1918 Damjili Cave Yoshihiro Nishiaki, Azad Zeynalov, Yagub Mammadov, 2025-03-31 Presents archaeological evidence from the Azerbaijan Japan excavations revealing insights into Mesolithic to Neolithic transition and farming communities in the South Caucasus Modern archaeological research carried out since the late 19th century has sufficiently demonstrated that the beginning of the food production economy and the establishment of a farming society had a significant impact on the shaping of subsequent human history Accordingly these processes of Neolithization have attracted a great deal of interest from archaeologists and anthropologists worldwide The South Caucasus i e the region discussed in this book has remained one of the least studied regions in a modern sense However the research situation has improved remarkably since the 2000s for a number of reasons above all the increasing efforts of local and international archaeologists in collaboration Since 2008 the Azerbaijan Japan Archaeological Mission has played a major role in elucidating the origins and developments of the earliest farming communities in the South Caucasus conducting a series of field campaigns in West Azerbaijan The remarkable achievements made thus far include the establishment of a secure chronological framework for understanding the Neolithization processes in the early 6th millennium BC through the excavations of two important Neolithic sites G ytepe and Hac Elamxanl Tepe in the Tovuz region representing the early and late phases of the Neolithic of the South Caucasus respectively dating from the early 6th millennium BC This volume presents a set of archaeological evidence obtained from the Azerbaijan Japan excavations in 2016 2022 at Damjili Cave West Azerbaijan The cave contained cultural layers from the Mesolithic period in particular along with Neolithic Chalcolithic Bronze Age and medieval material indicating a very long sequence of use Earlier explorers recorded Middle Palaeolithic lithic artifacts though no tools of this period were recovered during the recent program of work Ten small trenches were excavated revealing a considerable depth of deposits Mesolithic lithic materials provided evidence for obsidian blade production Neolithic levels that included some amorphous limestone block structures hearths and pits produced flaked and ground stone tools pottery and bone objects Part of the cave at least was utilized in the medieval period with evidence for some built structures and several burials A program of environmental sampling and both radiocarbon and luminescence dating were undertaken Through combining the records of the late G ytepe early Neolithic Hac Elamxanl Tepe and Mesolithic Damjili Cave periods our understanding of the Neolithization processes of the South Caucasus will be greatly improved Data from a combination of three chronologically different sites provide the first opportunity to observe Neolithization processes with secure stratigraphic evidence in a small region of West Azerbaijan

Neolithic Settlement in Ireland and Western Britain Ian Armit, Queen's University of Belfast, 2003 The papers in this volume which were presented at a conference held at Queen's University Belfast provided a forum for a discussion of the new Neolithic material from Ireland in its wider geographical context. Although the bulk of the emerging Irish settlement evidence relates to substantial houses, many of these papers consider wider themes including issues of contact and communication along the sea routes and coastal margins of north west Europe, questions of diversity and regional patterns of sedentism and mobility and variations in regional food production strategies. The volume includes twenty six papers representing a series of studies ranging geographically from Orkney to the French Atlantic facade. Book Jacket

Proceedings of the Society of Antiquaries of Scotland Society of Antiquaries of Scotland, 2007. Includes List of members

Ethno-analogy and the Reconstruction of Prehistoric Artefact Use and Production Martin Porr, 1999. A collection of 19 papers from a conference held in Tuebingen in 1997 on historical ethnographic and experimental approaches to the interpretation of prehistoric artefacts. Cross cultural case studies from both the Old and New Worlds and a diverse range of approaches and ideas makes this a most interesting group of studies. The focus is not on theoretical debates but on different ways of studying the use and production of prehistoric artefacts and their distribution. Text in English with abstracts in English, French and German.

Explaining Social Change Colin Renfrew, John F. Cherry, Christopher Scarre, Stephen Shennan, 2004. These papers look at the increasingly influential role of social archaeology, an area in which Colin Renfrew has been a key player. Topics covered include the development of the human mind, trade and exchange, social change, chiefdoms and states and the archaeology of island societies.

Stories from the Landscape Adrian M. Chadwick, 2004. Man's impact on the landscape is obvious although as this book makes clear his relationship with the landscape is a complicated one and is both physical and emotional.
