Human Navigation and Magnetoreception Robin Baker,2017-10-12 Human Navigation and Magnetoreception first published in 1989 was written to draw a line under an academic feud that had enlivened much of the 1980s Now thirty years on a new generation of researchers students and journalists have voiced a need for the book s contents to be made generally available again and this digital 30th Anniversary edition with a new Preface by the author is the result Like all mammals early humans needed to find their way from place to place without becoming lost For many the penalty for poor navigation was death Yet through most of humankind s evolutionary history the only map was in the head and the only compasses in the world around These were provided by the sun moon and stars and something else In 1980 research at Manchester University England led to the claim in the journal Science that during natural navigation humans can use an innate subconscious sense of magnetism The claim was novel to some scientists unjustified and in the years that followed triggered intense and often bitter argument as experiments were criticised improved repeated and extended Even thirty years after first publication Human Navigation and Magnetoreception remains the most complete book ever written on the subject of the human magnetic sense It describes over a decade of research by not only the author and his team at Manchester but also by his various critics and others around the world Although the experiments began on small groups of British students the studies eventually extended to include many ages and nationalities including specialist groups such as orienteers nudists trans equatorial travellers dyslexics and the blind By the time the Manchester and other studies ended thousands of people worldwide had taken part Other mammals horses and mice had also been studied and the results for all were exciting They were also controversial and the arguments they triggered vitriolic Aimed primarily but not only at scientists the book presents detailed experimental evidence in support of its conclusions It demonstrates how the magnetic sense is used alongside sun and star compasses in natural explorations It also demonstrates a close link between magnetoreception and sight and makes inferences for the nature of the magnetic sensor itself Within the book s pages all of the major points of scientific contention are discussed openly and objectively The result is a fascinating account of not only a little researched human sense but also of the hurdles that some new ideas have to clear before they can be accepted

The Image of Georgian Bath 1700-2000 Peter Borsay,2000-07-06 This interdisciplinary study explores the evolution structure and uses of the image of Georgian Bath from its genesis in the eighteenth century to its renaissance in the twentieth century In recent decades there has been both a popular resurgence of interest in heritage and tradition and a growing academic awareness of the power of imagery in shaping the lives of individuals and societies There is perhaps no city in Britain so saturated in history and layered with historic imagery as Bath It therefore provides an ideal case study to investigate the dynamic fusion and impact of the forces of past and representation The dominant perception of Bath today is that of a classical and particularly Georgian city In this stimulating and scholarly study Peter Borsay examines the construction and development of this image Its principal components biography and architecture are explored together with the media through which it was constructed and transmitted as well as its commercial social political and psychological uses Dr Borsay concludes by relating the findings for Bath to current debates on towns heritage and the nature of history
