Surfing The Zeitgeist:

Surfing the Zeitgeist Gilbert Adair, 1997 Surfing the Zeitgeist is a collection of essays by Britain's preeminent post-modernist. Confronted with a world in which too much is changing too fast, the attitude of most British critics is simply to ignore the fact that today's culture is in a state of constant ebullience and continues turning out or churning out week after week, month after month, the kind of article a complacent conflation of artistic impressions that could have been written thirty, fifty, or a hundred years ago. Gilbert Adair is a critic with a difference: Witty, perspicacious, and in love with language, he is prepared to engage with the multifarious realities of our culture in the least restricted sense of the word. He is prepared to embrace them, if not unconditionally, then at least without encumbering himself with any twinges of nostalgia for the past's redundant credos and repertoires. The essays, which make up this collection on subjects as various as postmodernism and pop music, AIDS and art movies, Tintin and the Titanic, thus constitute a uniquely stimulating record of the nineties, and like the cool, glinting surfaces of a Calder mobile, reflect the most significant fragments of our cultural agenda.

Meaning and International Relations Peter Mandaville, Andrew Williams, 2015-04-15 This innovative volume brings together specialists in international relations to tackle a set of difficult questions about what it means to live in a globalized world where the purpose and direction of world politics are no longer clear-cut. What emerges from these essays is a very clear sense that while we may be living in an era that lacks a single universal purpose, ours is still a world replete with meaning. The authors in this volume stress the need for a pluralistic conception of meaning in a globalized world and demonstrate how increased communication and interaction in transnational spaces work to produce complex tapestries of culture and politics. Meaning and International Relations also makes an original and convincing case for the relevance of hermeneutic approaches to understanding contemporary international relations.

The Future of Surfing in the Anthropocene Leon Mach, 2026-03-19 This book stakes the claim formally and authoritatively that we have entered the technological era of surfing. This argument suggests that the most significant differentiating characteristic of the modern surf era is the common acceptance of new technological inputs and the feverous pace at which the surf industry accelerates and extends the technological arsenal available to surfers. This book argues it is time to step back and ask what does it mean to surf in the Anthropocene Ocean. In what ways is technology improving or diminishing our experiences as surfers and the environments where we participate in it? Only when this dialogue occurs can we begin to understand technology in its present tense before considering what kind of future we can or want to create for the future of surfing.

Visual Economies Of/in Motion C. Richard King, David J. Leonard, 2006 Sport films have been central to American cinema, playing an increasingly important role in the communication of a commonsense understanding of race, gender, class, history, and social relations. Oddly, scholars have neglected sport films and their significance. Offering a comparative, theoretically grounded, and interdisciplinary approach, Visual Economies of in Motion marks a novel and important point of departure in sport studies and cultural studies It brings together a dozen essays on feature films and documentaries to probe the articulation of ideologies and identities play and power and sporting worlds and social fields Amazon com To the Extreme Robert E.

Rinehart, Synthia Sydnor, 2012-02-01 An international array of authors including some prominent extreme athletes like Jake Burton and Arlo Eisenberg look at a variety of issues and concerns within the new action extreme sports that are gaining popularity throughout the world For each sport an interpretation is presented through two essays one written by a scholar active in some aspect of research for the given activity and another by a practitioner athlete who writes from the inside out The juxtaposed essays confront questions about the essence of sport such as What is sport How does it originate and What is its use value and function This book offers a fascinating look at how twentieth and twenty first century sport forms emerge proliferate and take hold in a sport crazy world The Nation ,2001 Girls Will be Boys Liz Evans, 1997 A selection of articles written by women journalists on nineties rock and Britpop
