

Estimated Global Nuclear Warhead Inventories, 2025

Hans N. Kristensen, Matt Korda, Eliana Johns, and Mackenzie Knight-Boyle

The world's nine nuclear-armed states combined possess approximately 12,241 nuclear warheads, of which about 9,000 are earmarked for delivery by military forces. Russia and the United States possess approximately 60% of all nuclear warheads.

↑ Countries with increasing warhead stockpiles:

China, India, North Korea, Pakistan, Russia, UK

↓ Countries with decreasing warhead stockpiles: US

Numbers show estimated total nuclear warhead inventories, which include stockpiled warheads for use by military forces and warheads held in reserve. Of the 12,000 warheads in the military stockpiles, about 12,000 are deployment-eligible (includes and excludes bases). Approximately 1,000 warheads on ballistic missiles are on alert and can be launched on short notice.

The Spread Of Nuclear Weapons:

The Proliferation Puzzle Zachary S. Davis, Benjamin Frankel, 2020-12-01 Originally published in 1993 this volume was unique in its scope and approach Unlike most literature on nuclear weapons proliferation at the time the essays in this volume offer theoretical discussions and suggest testable hypotheses about the causes and effects of nuclear weapons proliferation The proliferation of nuclear weapons is an ideal subject for social science scholarship and such scholarship is especially timely now Among the topics discussed in The Proliferation Puzzle are The building of nuclear weapons is a complex task touching upon many of the subjects of study at the core of social science and international relations Nuclear weapons may be acquired as a hedge against external threat for reasons of national prestige or as a result of pressures by domestic coalitions among scientists bureaucrats and the military They may be sought for defensive purposes or to support hegemonic aspirations Nuclear weapons also raise questions about civilian command and control especially in crisis situations During the last two decades the acquisition of nuclear weapons has been proscribed by the non proliferation regime The decisions countries made about acquiring these weapons and the manner they chose to build them serve as a test of the efficacy of this particular regime and of international regimes more generally Nuclear weapons were introduced at the time bipolarity became the international order As the world moves away from bipolarity there is a need to answer questions such as What would be the effect of nuclear weapons in a multipolar order How will the spread of nuclear weapons affect the distribution of capabilities among states If nuclear weapons spread to additional countries will they enhance stability or exacerbate instability Can the spread of these weapons be managed or controlled This book brings together scholars from different schools within international relations and the social sciences to address the question of why nuclear weapons spread A disciplined rigorous examination of proliferation is important not only for scholarship but also for informed policymaking The purpose of social science is to formulate hypotheses and devise theories that advance our understanding of society and aid in the fashioning of enlightened policy The essays in this volume show how explicit hypotheses about the causes and consequences of nuclear weapons proliferation provide a deeper understanding of the problem and suggest specific theory informed policy recommendations

The Spread of Nuclear Weapons Scott Douglas Sagan, Kenneth Neal Waltz, 1995 Two scholars of international politics debate the issue of nuclear proliferation beyond the superpowers presenting arguments for more will be better and more will be worse

Stopping the Spread of Nuclear Weapons David Fischer, 1992 Fischer who helped draft the original charter of the International Atomic Energy Agency IAEA provides a detailed historical account of current non proliferation treaties and controls He notes that originally the proliferation problem was how to permit the development of nuclear power for cheap energy without permitting countries to develop bombs now the problem is how to prevent countries determined to build atomic bombs from acquiring the requisite technology Many technologies explosives computers nuclear energy that are key to the development of nuclear weapons also have other legitimate applications Fischer recommends reorienting the current non proliferation regime which is largely a Soviet American invention into one also supported by economic powers the European Community and Japan and that potential new nuclear states and closet nuclear powers be brought under broader IAEA controls ISBN 0 415 00481 0 66 95 The Spread of Nuclear Weapons Scott D. dilemma are also examined in three linked categories including an unusually full discussion of the phenomenon of nuclear free zones with particular emphasis on the zone covering Latin America The remarkably consistent anti proliferation policies of the USA from Baruch to Bush are debated and the nuclear non proliferation treaty itself with special attention paid to the international atomic energy s safeguards system is frankly appraised Exporting the Bomb Matthew Kroenig,2010 In a vitally important book for anyone interested in nuclear proliferation defense strategy or international security Matthew Kroenig points out that nearly every country with a nuclear weapons arsenal received substantial help at some point from a more advanced nuclear state Why do some countries help others to develop nuclear weapons Many analysts assume that nuclear transfers are driven by economic considerations States in dire economic need they suggest export sensitive nuclear materials and technology and ignore the security risk in a desperate search for hard currency Kroenig challenges this conventional wisdom He finds that state decisions to provide sensitive nuclear assistance are the result of a coherent strategic logic The spread of nuclear weapons threatens powerful states more than it threatens weak states and these differential effects of nuclear proliferation encourage countries to provide sensitive nuclear assistance under certain strategic conditions Countries are more likely to export sensitive nuclear materials and technology when it would have the effect of constraining an enemy and less likely to do so when it would threaten themselves In Exporting the Bomb Kroenig examines the most important historical cases including France s nuclear assistance to Israel in the 1950s and 1960s the Soviet Union s sensitive transfers to China from 1958 to 1960 China s nuclear aid to Pakistan in the 1980s and Pakistan s recent technology transfers with the help of rogue scientist A Q Khan from 1987 to 2002 Understanding why states provide sensitive nuclear assistance not only adds to our knowledge of international politics but also aids in international efforts to control the spread of nuclear weapons Stopping the Spread of Nuclear Weapons UNA-USA National Policy Panel on Stopping the Spread of Nuclear Weapons,1967 The Spread of Nuclear Weapons Scott Sagan,2001-08 Nuclear Ambitions Leonard S.
