Thermal Delight In Architecture:

Thermal Delight in Architecture Lisa Heschong, 1979-12-05 Our thermal environment is as rich in cultural associations as our visual acoustic olfactory and tactile environments This book explores the potential for using thermal qualities as an expressive element in building design Until quite recently building technology and design has favored high energy consuming mechanical methods of neutralizing the thermal environment It has not responded to the various ways that people use remember and care about the thermal environment and how they associate their thermal sense with their other senses The hearth fire the sauna the Roman and Japanese baths and the Islamic garden are discussed as archetypes of thermal delight about which rituals have developed reinforcing bonds of affection and ceremony forged in the thermal experience Not only is thermal symbolism now obsolete but the modern emphasis on central heating systems and air conditioning and hermetically sealed buildings has actually damaged our thermal coping and sensing mechanisms This book for the solar age could help change all that and open up for us a new dimension of architectural experience As the cost of energy continues to skyrocket alternatives to the use of mechanical force must be developed to meet our thermal needs A major alternative is the use of passive solar energy and the book will provide those interested in solar design with a reservoir of ideas City, Climate, and Architecture Sascha Roesler, 2025-01-27 Second and revised edition The publication rethinks climate control a key concern of the discipline of architecture through the lens of city climate phenomena over the course of the 20th century Based on a history of climate control on urban scales it promotes the integration of indoors and outdoors in order to reduce environmental and thermal loads in cities Just as heating and cooling practices inside the buildings are affecting the urban climate outdoors urban heat islands are influencing the energy requirements and thermal conditions inside the buildings While the first part of the book focuses on the interwar period in Europe the publication s second part considers examples from all over the globe tracing the growing significance of ecological thinking for the design of urban environments Main outcome of a six years research project on architecture and urban climate funded by the Swiss National Science Foundation New and revised edition KLIMA POLIS a series highlighting design driven approaches to urban climates across the globe

Architecture's Model Environments Lisa Moffitt, 2023-02-20 Seen through the distilling lens of the architectural model Architecture's Model Environments is a novel and far reaching exploration of the many dialogues buildings have with their environmental surroundings Expanding on histories of building technology the book sheds new light on how physical models conventionally understood as engineering experimentation devices enable architectural design speculation The book begins with a catalogue of ten original model prototypes of wind tunnels water tables and filling boxes and is the first of its kind to establish an architectural approach to fabricating such environmental models Subsequent chapters feature three precedent models that have been largely overlooked within the wider oeuvres of their authors French polymath tienne Jules Marey s 1900 2 wind tunnels Hungarian American architects Victor and Alad r Olgyay s 1955 63 thermoheliodon and Scottish chemist and building ventilation expert David Boswell The Ventilator Reid s 1844 test tube convection experiments Moving between historic moments and the present day between case studies and original prototypes the book reveals the potent ability for models as both physical artefacts and mental ideals to reflect prevailing cultural views about the world and to even reshape those views Fundamentally Architecture s Model Environments illustrates how environmental models reveal design insights across scales from the seam that leaks to the body that feels to the building that mediates to the world that immerses
