Social Organization And Planned Development In Rural Java:

Social Organization and Planned Development in Rural Java Sediono M. P. Tjondronegoro, 1984 Land Use, Nature Conservation and the Stability of Rainforest Margins in Southeast Asia Gerhard Gerold, Michael Fremerey, Edi Guhardja, 2013-06-29 Southeast Asia constitutes one of the world's most extended rainforest regions. It is characterized by a high degree of biodiversity and contains a large variety of endemic species. Moreover, these forests provide a number of important and singular ecosystem services like erosion protection and provision of high quality water which cannot be replaced by alternative ecosystems. However, various forms of encroachment, mostly those made by human interventions, seriously threaten the continuance of rainforests in this area. There is ample evidence that the rainforest resources, apart from large scale commercial logging, are exposed to danger, particularly from its margin areas. These areas, which are characterized by intensive man-nature interaction, have been identified as extremely fragile systems. The dynamic equilibrium that balances human needs and interventions on the one hand and natural regeneration capacity on the other is at stake. The decrease of rainforest resources is to a substantial degree connected with the destabilization of these systems. Accordingly, the search for measures and processes which prevent destabilization and promote stability is regarded as imperative. This refers to both the human and the natural part of the forest margin ecosystem.

State and Society in Bali H. Geertz, 2022-07-04 Balinese texts, temples, theatre performances and rituals in seven essays are placed into specific political contexts in an effort to gain a deeper understanding of the changing relations between state and society on the complex island of Bali. How have local communities been linked to various claimants to state sovereignty through Bali's history? What have been the forms and functions of the institutions that have joined peasants with kings and bureaucrats? How have these institutions changed and in what ways have they remained the same over the centuries? How have these relationships been represented by Balinese to themselves? And how should research on these issues be carried further forward? The contributors to this volume: I Gusti Ngurah Bagus, Hildred Geertz, Henk Schulte Nordholt, Raechelle Rubinstein, David J. Stuart Fox, Adrian Vickers and Carol Warren represent the disciplines of anthropology, literature and history, but all of them cut creatively across disciplinary lines. In contrast to previous Bali research, these studies put more emphasis on historical background and pay close attention to local Balinese perspectives. Early and colonial history form the frame of several papers, while others deal with major changes in the recent past. While each paper taken alone has its own specialized concerns, if the set is read as a series, an outline can be discerned not only of Balinese history and culture but also of some characteristic features of the new research on Bali being carried out in the 1980s. The interdisciplinary approach of this volume makes it challenging reading for a wider audience of Southeast Asianists.

The Malay World of Southeast Asia Patricia Lim Pui Huen, 1986 Over 5 000 entries arranged in four parts. Agricultural Growth in Indonesia Pierre van der Eng,1996-05-06 The impact of both colonial economic policies and Western enterprise on indigenous agriculture in Indonesia has long been a matter of contention among scholars This book provides the first quantification and assessment of the broad long term trends in agricultural production and productivity since 1880 It is the first comprehensive inventory of agricultural policies and their impact on agricultural production during the colonial era and after independence It stresses the continuity in the development of both agricultural productivity and policies from the colonial era until today

Culture and Privilege in Capitalist Asia Michael Pinches,2005-06-23 Culture and Privilege in Capitalist Asia shows that the cultural reconfiguration of domestic and international relations around Asia's new rich has often been characterised by tension and division

The Politics of NGOs in Indonesia Bob S. Hadiwinata,2003-08-29 This book deals with two major issues how Indonesian NGOs survived under Suharto's authoritarian rule and how NGOs contributed to the promotion of democracy in the post Suharto era If NGOs are to change from development to movement in democratic post Suharto Indonesia they must adjust not only their management and working style but also their very ideology This comprehensive study will be an important book for scholars interested in Asian studies Indonesian politics and development studies

Asia Before Europe K. N. Chaudhuri,1990 This book explores the dynamic interaction between economic life society and civilisation in the regions around and beyond the Indian Ocean during the period from the rise of Islam to 1750 Within a distinctive theory of comparative history Professor Chaudhuri analyses how the identity of different Asian civilisations was established He examines the structural features of food habits clothing architectural styles and housing the different modes of economic production and the role of crop raising pastoral nomadism and industrial activities for the main regions of the Indian Ocean In an original and perceptive conclusion the author demonstrates how Indian Ocean societies were united or separated from one another by a conscious cultural and linguistic identity However there was a deeper structure of unities created by a common ecology technology of economic production traditions of government theory of political obligations and rights and a shared historical experience His theory enables the author to show that the real Indian Ocean was an area that extended historically from the Red Sea and the Persian Gulf to the sea which lies beyond Japan
