Transforming Cities Contested Governance And New Spatial Divisions:

Transforming Cities Nick Jewson, Susanne Macgregor, 2018-05-11 Transforming Cities examines the profound changes that have characterised cities of the advanced capitalist societies in the final decades of the twentieth century. It analyses ways in which relationships of contest, conflict and co-operation are realised in and through the social and spatial forms of contemporary urban life. This book focuses on the impact of economic restructuring and changing forms of urban deprivation and social exclusion. It contends that these processes are creating new patterns of social division and new forms of regulation and control.

British Urban Policy Rob Imrie, Huw Thomas, 1999-06-22 This updated edition of British Urban Policy and the Urban Development Corporations provides a comprehensive account of the policies, programmes and effects of one of the most controversial urban policy programmes ever brought to bear upon British cities. The authors place the policies and practices of the urban development corporations (UDCs) in the wider sociopolitical context of evolving urban policy, present case studies of eight UDCs and explore the legacies of the UDCs and the evolving framework for urban policy into the millennium.

Cities and Consumption Mark Jayne, 2006 This text investigates the mutual and dynamic relationship between urban development and consumption. It uses case studies and illustrations from North America, Europe and Asia.

A Tale of Two Global Cities Jonathan Rutherford, 2004 Since the mid 1980s telecommunications and information technologies (IT) have become more intensely bound up than ever before in the social, economic, political and cultural processes and transformations which are increasingly concentrated in and between key strategic urban places across the globe. By analysing telecommunications developments in Paris and London, this book offers an explicit comparative and cross-national approach to the development of urban telecommunications infrastructures and to the development of global cities through a focus on these crucial infrastructures, engagement with the most relevant and recent debates and theories in urban studies, geography and planning. By examining differing but parallel influences of national, urban and local contexts, processes and practices bound up in telecommunications developments, the book firmly underlines the inherently territorial basis of these developments and their multi-scalar elements and implications, all of which are being reinforced by the current stringent strategic retrenching of telecommunications operations around the globe.

Classroom Spaces and Writing Instruction Ed Nagelhout, Carol Rutz, 2004 This work calls attention to the ways that teachers of writing must attend to the idea of the classroom; must be conscious of the spaces in which they meet students and must be aware of the physical material conditions that constrain or affect the teaching of writing.

Confronting Twenty-first Century Challenges Ruth Mukama, Murindwa Rutanga, 2005

The Naga Challenged Victor R. Savage, May Tan-Mullins, 2005 The Naga Awakens published in 1997 looked at the positive developments in southeastern Asia; this sequel addresses political, economic and cultural issues rising out of the 1997-98 Asian crisis. Contributors from economics, political science, law, urban planning and geography look at such topics.
