Translating the World Birgit Tautz, 2017-12-07 In Translating the World Birgit Tautz provides a new narrative of German literary history in the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries Departing from dominant modes of thought regarding the nexus of literary and national imagination she examines this intersection through the lens of Germany's emerging global networks and how they were rendered in two very different German cities Hamburg and Weimar German literary history has tended to employ a conceptual framework that emphasizes the nation or idealized citizenry yet the experiences of readers in eighteenth century German cities existed within the context of their local environments in which daily life occurred and writers such as Lessing Schiller and Goethe worked Hamburg a flourishing literary city in the late eighteenth century was eventually relegated to the margins of German historiography while Weimar then a small town with an insular worldview would become mythologized for not only its literary history but its centrality in national German culture By interrogating the histories of and texts associated with these cities Tautz shows how literary styles and genres are born of local rather than national interaction with the world Her examination of how texts intersect and interact reveals how they shape and transform the urban cultural landscape as they are translated and move throughout the world A fresh elegant exploration of literary translation discursive shifts and global cultural changes perspectives on the complex role of translation in the dissemination of literatures around the world Eleven chapters written by multilingual scholars explore issues and themes as diverse as the geopolitics of translation cosmopolitanism changing media environments and transdisciplinarity This book locates translation firmly within current debates about the transcultural movements of texts and challenges the hegemony of English in world literature Translation and World Literature is an indispensable resource for students and scholars working in the fields of translation studies comparative literature and world literature

Translating Samuel Beckett around the World José Francisco Fernández, Pascale Sardin, 2021-08-03 The global reception of Samuel Beckett raises numerous questions in which areas of the world was Beckett first translated Why were Beckett texts sometimes slow to penetrate certain cultures How were national literatures impacted by Beckett's oeuvre Translating Samuel Beckett around the World brings together leading researchers in Beckett studies to discuss these questions and explore the fate of Beckett in their own societies and national languages The current text provides ample coverage of the presence of Beckett in geographical contexts normally ignored by literary criticism and reveals unknown aspects of the 1969 Nobel Prize winner interacting with translators of his work in a number of different countries

Literary Translation Ida Klitgård, 2006 This volume of Angles on the English Speaking World discusses the intriguing inter-relatedness between the concepts and phenomena of world literature and translation The term worlding presented by Strur Eysteinnsson in this collection is coined by Sarah Lawell in her book Reading World Literature 1994 where it denotes the reader's pleasurable reading of the meeting of worlds in a literary translation i.e. the meeting of the different cultural environments embodied in a translation from one language into another Through such reading the reader in fact participates in creating true world literature This is a somewhat unorthodox conception of world literature conventionally defined as great literature shelved in a majestic canonical library In the opening article sparking off the theme of this collection Eysteinnsson asks Which text does the concept of world literature refer to It can hardly allude exclusively to the original which the majority of the work's readers may never get to know On the other hand it hardly refers to the various translations as seen apart from the original It seems to have a crucial bearing on the border between the two and on the very idea that the work merits the move across this linguistic and cultural border to reside in more than two languages Picking up on this question at issue all the essays in this collection throw light on the problematic mechanics of cultural encounters when reading the world in literary translation i.e. in the texts themselves as well as in the ways in which they have become institutionalised as world literature

The World of Translation, 1971 Translating Worlds Susannah Radstone, Rita Wilson, 2020-09-06 This international and interdisciplinary volume explores the relations between translation migration and memory It brings together humanities researchers from a range of disciplines including history museum studies memory studies translation studies and literary cultural and media studies to examine memory and migration through the interconnecting lens of translation The innovative perspective adopted by Translating Worlds understands translation's explanatory reach as extending beyond the comprehension of one language by another to encompass those complex and multi layered processes of parsing by means of which the unfamiliar and the familiar the old home and the new are brought into conversation and connection Themes discussed include How memories of lost homes act as aids or hindrances to homemaking in new worlds How cultural memories are translated in new cultural contexts Migration affect memory and translation Migration language and transcultural memory Migration traumatic memory and translation

Translating Worlds Carlo Severi, William F. Hanks, 2015-12-15 Set against the backdrop of anthropology's recent focus on various turns whether ontological ethical or otherwise this pathbreaking volume returns to the question of knowledge and the role of translation as a theoretical and ethnographic guide for twenty first century anthropology gathering together contributions from leading thinkers in the field Since Ferdinand de Saussure and Franz Boas languages have been seen as systems whose differences make precise translation nearly impossible And still others have viewed translation between languages as principally indeterminate The contributors here argue that the challenge posed by the constant confrontation between incommensurable worlds and systems may be the most fertile ground for state of the art ethnographic theory and practice Ranging from tourism in New Guinea to shamanism in the Amazon to the globally ubiquitous restaurant menu the contributors mix philosophy and ethnography to redefine translation not only as a key technique for understanding ethnography but as a larger principle in epistemology

And Translation Changed the World (and the World Changed Translation) Alberto Fuentes, Esther Torres, 2015-02-05 Communication is the basis for human societies while contact between communities is the basis for translation Whether by conflict or cooperation translation has played a major role in the evolution of societies and it has evolved with them This volume offers different perspectives on and approaches to similar topics and situations within different countries and cultures through the work of young scholars Translation has a powerful effect on the relationships between peoples and between people and power Translation affects initial contacts between cultures some of them made with the purpose of spreading religion some of them with the purpose of learning about the other Translation is affected by contexts of power and differences between peoples raising questions such as What is translated Who does it and Why Translation is an undeniable part of the global society in which the retrieval and distribution of information becomes an institutional matter despite the rise of English as a lingua franca Translation is in all cases composed by the voice of the translators a voice that is not always clearly distinguished but is always present This volume examines the role of translators in different historical contexts focusing particularly on how their work affected their surroundings and on how the context surrounding them affected their work The papers collected in this volume were originally presented at the 2013 conference New Research in Translation and Intercultural Studies and are arranged in chronological order extending from 16th century Mexico to 21st century Japan
