across transport planning and evaluation There is a review of the radical policy alternative presented by the market approach to transport provision and a complementary new chapter on events since 1997 with the difficulties of finding the means to introduce the social market The first part ends with a discussion on the limitations of transport planning in terms of both its theoretical foundations and of the approaches currently being used The second part of the book begins with a Comparative Analysis of experience in three European countries Germany France and the Netherlands and the United States It covers both transport planning and evaluation where difference approaches have been developed in response to national policy issues and the different cultural and analytical traditions This experience provides a useful context for interpreting the new agenda in the UK This is followed by a Prospective Analysis of the key issues facing transport planners in the twenty first century including the need to replace existing infrastructure to build new infrastructure and to ensure the optimal use of existing infrastructure All these issues will necessitate different analytical approaches particularly where new forms of financing are required and as the new political relationships between the state and market are stabilised Some form of strategic vision is required together with a planning framework within which the market can operate
