The Ironmonger ,1897 The New World Harold Lawton Bruce,Guy Montgomery,1928 Darwinism and Other Essays John Fiske,1879 In the present age when the number of scientific inquirers has greatly increased and the interchange of thoughts has become rapid and constant it takes much less time for a new generalisation to make its way into people s minds It is now barely eighteen years since Mr Darwin s views on the origin of species were announced in a book which purported to be only the rough preliminary sketch of a greater work in course of preparation But though greeted at the beginning with ridicule and opprobrium the theory of natural selection has already won a complete and overwhelming victory One could count on one s fingers the number of eminent naturalists who still decline to adopt it and the hesitancy of these appears to be determined in the main by theological or metaphysical and therefore not strictly relevant objections But it is not simply that the great body of naturalists have accepted the Darwinian theory it has become part and parcel of their daily thoughts an element in every investigation which cannot be got rid of With a tacit consent that is almost unanimous the classificatory relations among plants and animals have come to be recognised as representing degrees of genetic kinship One needs but to read constantly such scientific journals as Nature or to peer into the proceedings of scientific societies to see how thoroughly all contemporary inquiry is permeated by the conception of natural selection The record of research whether in embryology in palaeontology or in the study of the classification and distribution of organised beings has come to be the registration of testimony in support of Mr Darwin s hypothesis So deeply indeed has this mighty thinker impressed his thoughts on the mind of the age that in order fully to unfold the connotations of the word Darwinism one could hardly stop short of making an index to the entire recent literature of the organic sciences The sway of natural selection in biology is hardly less complete than that of gravitation in astronomy and thus it is probably true that no other scientific discoverer has within his own lifetime obtained so magnificent a triumph as Mr Darwin The comparison of the doctrine of natural selection with the Newtonian theory is made advisedly as I wish to call attention to some differences in the aspect of the proofs by which two such different hypotheses are established pages 2 4
