The game theoretic modelling of negotiations has been an active research area for the past five decades that started with the seminal work by Nobel laureate John Nash in the early 1950s. This book provides a survey of some of the major developments in the field of strategic bargaining models, with an emphasis on the role of threats in the negotiation process. Threats are all actions outside the negotiation room that negotiators have at their disposal and the use of these actions affects the bargaining position of all negotiators. Of course, each negotiator aims to strengthen his own position. Examples of threats are the announcement of a strike by a union in centralized wage bargaining or a nation's announcement of a trade war directed against other nations in negotiations for trade liberalization. This book is organized on the basis of a simple guiding principle: The situation in which none of the parties involved in the negotiations has threats at its disposal is the natural benchmark for negotiations where the parties can make threats. Also on the technical level, negotiations with variable threats build on and extend the techniques applied in analyzing bargaining situations without threats. The first part of this book, containing chapters 3-6, presents the no-threat case, and the second part, containing chapters 7-10, extends the analysis for negotiation situations where threats are present. A consistent and unifying framework is provided first in 2 Argumentation in Multi-Agent Systems Simon D. Parsons, Nicolas Maudet, Pavlos Moraitis, Iyad Rahwan, 2006-07-06. This book constitutes the thoroughly refereed post-proceedings of the Second International Workshop on Argumentation in Multi-Agent Systems held in Utrecht, Netherlands, in July 2005, as an associated event of AAMAS 2005, the main international conference on autonomous agents and multi-agent systems. The 10 revised full papers presented together with an invited paper were carefully reviewed and selected from 17 submissions. The papers are organized in topical sections.
