Three Faces Of Imperialism:

Three Faces of Imperialism Phillip George Cavell Darby, 1987 Understanding the British Empire Ronald Hyam, 2010-05-20 Understanding the British Empire draws on a lifetime's research and reflection on the history of the British Empire by one of the senior figures in the field. Essays cover six key themes: the geopolitical and economic dynamics of empire; religion and ethics; imperial bureaucracy; the contribution of political leaders; the significance of sexuality; and the shaping of imperial historiography. A major new introductory chapter draws together the wider framework of Dr Hyam's studies, and several new chapters focus on lesser-known figures. Other chapters are revised versions of earlier papers reflecting some of the debates and controversies raised by the author's work, including the issue of sexual exploitation, the European intrusion into Africa, including the African response to missionaries, trusteeship, and Winston Churchill's imperial attitudes. Combining traditional archival research with newer forms of cultural exploration, this is an unusually wide-ranging approach to key aspects of empire.

Fiction of Imperialism Philip Darby, 1998-05-01 The Fiction of Imperialism attempts to promote dialogue between international relations and postcolonialism. It addresses the value of fiction to an understanding of the imperial relationship between the West and Asia and Africa. A wide range of fiction and criticism is examined as it pertains to colonialism, the North-South engagement, and contemporary Third World politics. The book begins by contrasting the treatment of cross-cultural relations in political studies and literary texts. It then examines the personal as a metaphor for the political in fiction, depicting the imperial connection between Britain and India. This is paired with an analysis of African literary texts which takes as its theme the relationship between culture and politics. The concluding chapters approach literature from the outside, considering its apparent silence on economics and realpolitik, and assessing the utility of postcolonial reconceptualisations.

Cyberimperialism? Bosah Ebo, 2000-11-30 This collection of essays addresses whether all nations will actively participate in building the information superhighway or whether the Internet will reflect global technological inequalities. The writings are grouped in four major sections which examine theoretical issues on cyberglobalization, politics in the electronic global village, global economic issues in cyberspace, and national identities and grassroots movements in cyberspace. Contributing scholars represent a wide spectrum of disciplines from political science, economics, and communications to sociology, anthropology, and philosophy. A number of methodological and theoretical perspectives direct the writings. Collectively, the essays point toward an emerging technology that exhibits innate qualities characteristic of the classic notion of cultural imperialism. This edited collection, with its timely approach to the implications of the Internet for global relations, will appeal to communication, sociology, and political science scholars. The interdisciplinary approach will also attract students and educators from such fields as anthropology, philosophy, and economics. To aid in further research, select bibliographies follow each essay.

The Three Faces of Revolution Fred Schwarz, 1972 Frank Capra's Eastern Horizons Elizabeth Rawitsch, 2014-10-16 Frank Capra has long had a reputation as being the quintessential American director the man who perfectly captured the identity and core values of the United States with a string of classic films in the 1930s and 40s including It Happened One Night Mr Smith Goes to Washington and It's a Wonderful Life However as Elizabeth Rawitsch argues Capra's construction of national identity did not occur within an exclusively national context She points out that many of his films are actually set in or include sequences set in China Latin America the Philippines and the South Seas Featuring in depth textual analysis supported by original archival research Frank Capra's Eastern Horizons explains that Capra's view of what constituted America changed over time extending its boundaries to embrace countries often far from the United States Complicating Edward Said's theory of Orientalism as a strict binary in which the West constructs the East as an inferior other it demonstrates that East and West often intermingle in films such as The Bitter Tea of General Yen and in Capra's orientation documentaries for World War II American servicemen Capra imagined a kind of global community albeit one with heavy undertones of British and American imperialism Investigating shifts in what Capra's America has meant over time both to Capra and to those who have watched and studied his films this innovative book offers a startlingly fresh perspective on one of the most iconic figures in American film history The Political Economy of Grand Strategy Kevin Narizny, 2007 A nation's grand strategy rarely serves the best interests of all its citizens Instead every strategic choice benefits some domestic groups at the expense of others When groups with different interests separate into opposing coalitions societal debates over foreign policy become polarized along party lines Parties then select leaders who share the priorities of their principal electoral and financial backers As a result the overarching goals and guiding principles of grand strategy as formulated at the highest levels of government derive from domestic coalitional interests In The Political Economy of Grand Strategy Kevin Narizny develops these insights into a comprehensive theoretical framework for understanding the dynamics of security policy The focus of this analysis is the puzzle of partisanship The conventional view of grand strategy in which state leaders act as neutral arbiters of the national interest cannot explain why political turnover in the executive office often leads to dramatic shifts in state behavior Narizny in contrast shows how domestic politics structured foreign policymaking in the United States and Great Britain from 1865 to 1941 In so doing he sheds light on long standing debates over the revival of British imperialism the rise of American expansionism the creation of the League of Nations American isolationism in the interwar period British appeasement in the 1930s and both countries decisions to enter World War I and World War II Paths to Power Michael J. Hogan, 2000-02-13 Paths to Power includes essays on US foreign relations from the founding of the nation through the outbreak of World War II Essays by leading historians review the literature on American diplomacy in the early Republic and in the age of Manifest Destiny on American imperialism in the late nineteenth century and in the age of Roosevelt and Taft on war and peace in the Wilsonian era on foreign policy in the Republican ascendancy of the 1920s and on the origins of World War II in Europe and the Pacific The result is a comprehensive assessment of the current literature helpful suggestions for further research and a useful primer Conference,2006 The Origins of the South African War, 1899-1902 Iain R. Smith,1996 Iain Smith s impressive reappraisal of the origins of what used to be known as the Anglo Boer War is based on extensive work in the British and South African archives While paying due attention to the roots of the conflict in the pattern of European conquest and settlement in South Africa he concentrates particularly on the transformations that resulted from the discovery of gold in the Transvaal during the high noon of British imperialism and the scramble for Africa The mounting conflict of interests between Britain and what had been a poor Boer republic makes a dramatic story with a cast of powerful personalities that includes Rhodes Chamberlain Kruger Smuts and Milner Iain Smith does it and them full justice in this authoritative and enthralling account of one of the climatic moments in South African and British imperial history The Great Exhibition John R. Davis,1999 The Great Exhibition the brainchild of Prince Albert was held at the specially constructed Crystal Palace between May and October 1851 The 13 000 exhibits were seen by 6 2 million people who came to celebrate Britain s industrial ascendancy and a renewed confidence in the possibilities of peaceful social progress This book provides an accessible narrative history of the exhibition its wider significance in light of the Millennium and the new great exhibition at Greenwich planned to celebrate it Governments of the World Richard M.
