The Structure of Time Vyvyan Evans,2004-03-05 One of the most enigmatic aspects of experience concerns time Since pre Socratic times scholars have speculated about the nature of time asking questions such as What is time Where does it come from Where does it go The central proposal of The Structure of Time is that time at base constitutes a phenomenologically real experience Drawing on findings in psychology neuroscience and utilising the perspective of cognitive linguistics this work argues that our experience of time may ultimately derive from perceptual processes which in turn enable us to perceive events As such temporal experience is a pre requisite for abilities such as event perception and comparison rather than an abstraction based on such phenomena The book represents an examination of the nature of temporal cognition with two foci i an investigation into pre conceptual temporal experience and ii an analysis of temporal structure at the conceptual level which derives from temporal experience Time Briton Hadden, Henry Robinson
