Strength To Yield:

Weldability of High-strength Aluminum Alloys Robert Melvin Evans, D. J. Maykuth, 1966 This memorandum describes the fusion welding characteristics mechanical properties and stress corrosion behavior of high strength weldable aluminum alloys These are defined as alloys in which sound welds can be produced and in which at least 50 and 70 percent of the maximum base metal strength can be retained in the as welded and post weld treated conditions respectively Careful selection of joining method and filler metals as well as close control of joining process parameters is necessary to produce high strength aluminum weldments Highest strengths and weld joint efficiencies in high strength weldable alloys are achieved with the use of postweld aging and or mechanical treatments The best combination of highest strengths and good welding characteristics is found in the 2000 and 7000 alloy series As compared with the 2000 and 5000 alloy series the 7000 alloy as a class suffer three major property disadvantages 1 their tendency to be notch sensitive 2 their tendency to exhibit low toughness at low temperatures and 3 their much greater susceptibility to stress corrosion cracking Nonetheless several relatively new 7000 series alloys have been developed which show reasonably good notch toughness to 423 F and which are considered competitive with the 2219 and 2014 alloys for cryogenic applications Author Bulletin - American Railway Engineering Association American Railway Engineering Association, 1911 High-strength Bolts for Bridges, 1991

Relational Analysis John Gilbert Kaufman, 2011-01-01 This book demonstrates how to use relational analysis methodology to extrapolate and estimate properties of metallic alloys at high temperatures from lower temperature data and for estimating the properties of alloys for which scant property data exists Data tables and graphs are presented for a wide range of aluminum alloys Also shown is how to apply relational analysis to other alloy systems including steels magnesium alloys and titanium alloys Bulletin, 1913 Forging, Stamping, Heat Treating, 1926 Welding of Aluminum and Aluminum Alloys R. P. Meister, David Carl Martin, 1967 The purpose of this report is to summarize the present state of aluminum welding technology The major topics covered are Basic metallurgy of various heat treatable and non heat treatable alloy classes welding processes used for joining aluminum with emphasis on newer processes and procedures which are considered important in defense metals industries welding characteristics of various alloys comparison of tensile properties cracking tendencies notch toughness and stress corrosion characteristics of various weldments dissimilar metal welds and causes of porosity and cracking of aluminum welds and the effect of porosity on weld strength Author A History of the Theory of Elasticity and of the Strength of Materials: Galilei to Saint-Venant, 1639-1850.-v. 2. pt. 1-2.
