Approaches to Geo-mathematical Modelling Alan G. Wilson, 2016-08-26 Geo mathematical modelling models from complexity science Sir Alan Wilson Centre for Advanced Spatial Analysis University College London Mathematical and computer models for a complexity science tool kit Geographical systems are characterised by locations activities at locations interactions between them and the infrastructures that carry these activities and flows They can be described at a great variety of scales from individuals and organisations to countries Our understanding often partial of these entities and in many cases this understanding is represented in theories and associated mathematical models In this book the main examples are models that represent elements of the global system covering such topics as trade migration security and development aid together with examples at finer scales This provides an effective toolkit that can not only be applied to global systems but more widely in the modelling of complex systems All complex systems involve nonlinearities involving path dependence and the possibility of phase changes and this makes the mathematical aspects particularly interesting It is through these mechanisms that new structures can be seen to emerge and hence the current notion of emergent behaviour The range of models demonstrated include account based models and biproportional fitting structural dynamics space time statistical analysis real time response models Lotka Volterra models representing war agent based models epidemiology and reaction diffusion approaches game theory network models and finally integrated models Geo mathematical modelling Presents mathematical models with spatial dimensions Provides representations of path dependence and phase changes Illustrates complexity science using models of trade migration security and development aid Demonstrates how generic models from the complexity science tool kit can each be applied in a variety of situations This book is for practitioners and researchers in applied mathematics geography economics and interdisciplinary fields such as regional science and complexity science It can also be used as the basis of a modelling course for postgraduate students

Culture Evolves Andrew Whiten, 2012 Culture broadly defined as all we learn from others that endures for long enough to generate customs and traditions shapes vast swathes of our lives and has allowed the human species to dominate the planet in an evolutionarily unique way Culture and cultural evolution are uniquely significant phenomena in evolutionary biology they are products of biological evolution yet they supplement genetic transmission with social transmission thus achieving a certain independence from natural selection However cultural evolution nevertheless expresses key Darwinian processes itself and also interacts with genetic evolution Just how culture fits into the grander framework of evolution is a big issue though yet one that has received relatively little scientific attention compared to for
