

A Brief History of Whaling

EARLY HUNTING

3000 BCE: Whaling was practiced by Inuit peoples and others in the North Atlantic and North Pacific oceans.

17TH CENTURY:

Smeerenburg ("Blubbertown") was built on Spitsbergen after 1619. During its heyday in the 1630s and '40s, the settlement had 150 men servicing whalers that hunted the whales in the surrounding Arctic Ocean.

Arctic bay whaling ended in the mid-1650s because of the onset of a miniature ice age that lasted for the rest of the 17th century.

1000 BCE: The Basques caught northern right whales that gathered to breed in the Bay of Biscay.

1850s:

The quarry of slow-moving 1850s-era vessels was sperm whales (Physeter catodon) and right whales (family Balaenidae, four species).

MODERN ERA

1950s TO 1980s:

Larger 1950s-era vessels allowed for greater range as well as the capability to process hunted whales at sea.

Floating factories made it possible to process a 100-ton blue whale (Balaenoptera musculus) in one hour.

Carcasses were winched up onto an open butchering deck via a slipway through the stern.

Modern vessels were equipped with helicopters and diesel engines, which allowed whalers to locate and overtake faster quarry.

THE PRESENT:

Minko whales (Balaenoptera acutorostrata and B. bonaerensis) are frequently listed as the quarry of Iceland, Norway, and Japan—the last remaining whaling countries—for food and research. Nearly 200 minko whales per year are harvested by aboriginal peoples in Greenland.

Whaling World:

The Great Chase Daniel Francis,1991 Whaling Around the World World Council of Whalers,2004 Japanese Whaling and the People Behind It Nadzeya Shutava,2024-02-13 This book explores the recent developments in global and Japanese whaling from the viewpoint of the members of the Japanese whaling community a perspective that is largely neglected and misinterpreted Japanese whaling has been one of the most contentious issues in global environmental governance in recent years and Japan is often harshly criticized for its whaling programs By distinguishing between the different whaling related actors and their experiences this book widens our understanding of why whaling programs continue to exist Rich in ethnographic data the book includes in depth interviews with representatives of the Japanese whaling community from government officials to fishermen shedding light on what whaling represents both historically and today As an ethnographic study of a divisive and controversial subject this book will appeal to a wide range of students and scholars including but not limited to those interested in Japanese studies anthropology political science and ocean resource management

The World's Markets ,1922 The International Politics of Whaling Peter J. Stoett,2011-11-01 Whales large mysterious intelligent and endangered In 1986 a global moratorium on whaling was issued by the International Whaling Commission However that decision was not without controversy Some countries such as Norway continue to whale in defiance of the ban In this fascinating book Peter Stoett combines ecological sensitivity with a hard assessment of the political realities of the international regime to examine this important issue The International Politics of Whaling examines contemporary whaling issues with an emphasis on three factors our knowledge of whales and current whale populations and the impact of whaling the actors and institutions involved in the debate over whaling and the ethical dimension Reluctantly he concludes that the current global moratorium on whaling is problematic and that we must focus instead on habitat preservation in order to protect whales more effectively

World's Work ,1904 Constructing the International Economy Rawi Abdelal,Mark Blyth,Craig Parsons,2015-10-27 Focusing empirically on how political and economic forces are always mediated and interpreted by agents both in individual countries and in the international sphere Constructing the International Economy sets out what such constructions and what various forms of constructivism mean both as ways of understanding the world and as sets of varying methods for achieving that understanding It rejects the assumption that material interests either linearly or simply determine economic outcomes and demands that analysts consider as a plausible hypothesis that economies might vary substantially for nonmaterial reasons that affect both institutions and agents interests Constructing the International Economy portrays the diversity of models and approaches that exist among constructivists writing on the international political economy The authors outline and relate several different arguments for why scholars might attend to social construction inviting the widest possible array of scholars to engage with such approaches They examine points of terminological or theoretical confusion that create unnecessary barriers to engagement between

The Wake of the Whale Russell Fielding,2018-10-08 Despite declining stocks and health risks island communities in the Caribbean and North Atlantic still use traditional methods to hunt whales and dolphins for food Russell Fielding presents the art history and purpose of whaling in these different cultures and describes what their future might look like as modern realities take hold

The World's Work ,1930 A history of our time Earthly Politics Sheila Jasanoff,Marybeth Martello,2004-03-19 Globalization today is as much a problem for international harmony as it is a necessary condition of living together on our planet Increasing interconnectedness in ecology economy technology and politics has brought nations and societies into even closer contact creating acute demands for cooperation Earthly Politics argues that in the coming decades global governance will have to accommodate differences even as it obliterates distance and will have to respect many aspects of the local while developing institutions that transcend localism This book analyzes a variety of environmental governance approaches that balance the local and the global in order to encourage new more flexible frameworks of global governance On the theoretical level it draws on insights from the field of science and technology studies to enrich our understanding of environmental development politics On the pragmatic level it discusses the design of institutions and processes to address problems of environmental governance that increasingly refuse to remain within national boundaries The cases in the book display the crucial relationship between knowledge and power the links between the ways we understand environmental problems and the ways we manage them and illustrate the different paths by which knowledge power formations are arrived at contested defended or set aside By examining how local and global actors ranging from the World Bank to the Makah tribe in the Pacific Northwest respond to the contradictions of globalization the authors identify some of the conditions for creating more effective engagement between the global and the local in environmental governance
