Thomson, Société royale du Canada, 1956      The Grenville Problem Royal Society of Canada, 1972      The Grenville Problem: The Royal Society of Canada Special Publications James E. Thomson, 1956-12 A symposium on The Grenville Problem was arranged for the annual meeting of the Society at Toronto in 1955 to discuss all aspects of Grenville geology Several of the papers presented were assembled in this publication      The Grenville Problem Royal Society of Canada, 1956      The Grenville Problem ... The Deep Proterozoic Crust in the North Atlantic Provinces Alex C. Tobi, Jacques L.R. Touret, 2012-12-06 The Proterozoic terrains of South Scandinavia and the Grenville Province in North America have many common features Regional high grade metamorphism Granulite facies anorthosites etc They are separated by the Caledonian orogeny and above all by the Atlantic Ocean During the time of the great continental drift controversy few people were ready to admit that both sides on the Atlantic were once an unique province Now everybody agrees on the Post paleozoic age of the Atlantic and consequently on the intrinsic homogeneity of the much older rocks which occur around it But a detailed comparison is not easy The Grenville Province is much larger than South Scandinavia both regions have been investigated by a great number of different schools using various methods approaches and concepts After several attempts and long discussion it was felt by a small group of individuals that literature study would not be enough and that nothing could re place the direct contact in the field of specialists who had a first hand knowledge of all involved regions The formula of a NATO Advanced Study Institute which gives a unique opportunity to meet and mix people of various origin and levels came almost by itself Much work was needed much help has been obtained as detailed in the Acknowledgements      The Irish Problem and how to Solve it Irish problem, 1881      Regional Tectonic Synthesis of Northwestern New England and Adjacent Quebec Wallace Martin Cady, 1969      Problems of American Geology William North Rice, 1915      The Proterozoic in Canada James E. Gill, 1957-12-15 Proterozoic time produced much of great interest to geologists and was of tremendous economic import to the people of Canada and the United States Most of the iron deposits of the Lake Superior district the Michigan copper deposits the enormously important Sudbury nickel copper platinum deposits the spectacular silver deposits of the Cobalt district and all of the important uranium ores in the Shield area are considered to have formed during this period in geological time Proterozoic rock groups include those Precambrian rocks which are least deformed and metamorphosed Because of their important economic deposits they have been examined in great detail in certain localities The results of such examination and of others which were for reconnaissance only are summarized in this volume of the Royal Society of Canada Suggestions are made for revision of previous interpretations of Precambrian history and the terminology which grew out of them Three papers deal with problems arising from the current use of the term Proterozoic and with possible changes in its use to bring it more into accord with the facts Contributors to this volume are E M Abraham Robert Bergeron R G Blackadar I C Brown G H Charleswood J F Davies K E Eade W F Fahrig R M Farquhar James E Gill H C Gunning J M Harrison D F Hewitt W W Moorhouse J E Reesor S M Roscoe R D Russell James E Thomson Robert Thomson L J Weeks Alice E Wilson J T Wilson G M Wright
